Cheers for the Drip-Dry Shirt

At this very minute, in thousands of hotel bathrooms around the world, there is the steady, monotonous sound of drip-dry cotton shirts busy at their appointed task of drying out.

The ritual of washing out the shirt, and perhaps shorts as well, daily and nightly is performed in hotels great and obscure, in Asia, Europe, Latin America, and the distant islands of the seven seas. So great is this force of habit that tourists who have given themselves thoroughly to an evening of being the life of the party have been known to totter down to breakfast and say, with a look of awe, "I don't even remember going to bed, but you know, I washed my shirt and hung it out to dry."

Tourists delight in coming back home with laundry, packed on departure, still unused, all because of the thrifty handiness of the drip-dry shirt.

All of which introduces the cotton story for 1959.

The textile industry, which sometimes seems to enjoy telling a "poor mouth" story, is anticipating a good year. The industry has a number of old mills which cannot be competitive. These mills invariably have a history of management in which money was taken out, and none put back. Old machinery can't compete with new methods.

Textile Industry

But wherever research and money have been spent, American mills have been demonstrating the probable future of the U.S. textile industry . . . specialization in quality fabrics and knittings. The drip-dry shirt is a good example. It has provided a comeback in a field which for a time was held almost entirely by quick-drying shirts of synthetic fibers.

The cotton crop coming up is likely to be a historic one. Preliminary estimates are that it may average a bale an acre. To understand the real meaning of this one must know that in the thirties the average yield was about one-half a bale per acre.

The Department of Agriculture forecasts a yield from 14,991,000 acres at 474 pounds of lint per acre. This compares with the record of 466 pounds set by the 1958 crop and the 10-year-average of 329 pounds.

Here, if one wishes to visualize these figures in terms of fields and what man has learned about growing cotton, is a perfect illustration of what people mean when they speak of an agricultural revolution. In all phases of production of crops of fibers, vegetable foods and livestock, man now knows more about farming than ever before. More than that, he eagerly pushes on to learn more, confident that new discoveries will further revolutionize land uses and crops.

Effective Factors

A number of simple but effective factors explain the upward drive in cotton production. Mechanization is one. I can recall talking with a Mississippi Delta plantation owner not too many years ago who snorted he would never use mechanical pickers. "The best cotton-picking machine in the world," he said, "is a pair of experieneed black hands." Within three years he was using flame weeders and mechanical pickers. Other forces producing change have been research, seed quality and more effective insecticides.

Above all, insofar as production is concerned, has been the extension of cotton growing to the irrigated lands of the West. Here two bales to the acre is commonplace.

All, certainly almost all, this year's crop is expected to be used up in production and export. Domestic mills project use of a half-million more bales this year than last. The government has a carry-over from previous crops of about 8,800,000 bales. Of this, about 85 per cent is held in federal warehouses at great taxpayer expense. If Red China and Russia do not move heavily into the world market some of the carry-over will be sold. But every cotton man knows that in the years ahead both these nations will become a powerful influence in the world's fiber market.

Meanwhile, the drip-dry shirt is doing its best.

ANNE MARIE'S POLICEMAN UNCLE MEETS HER FATHER-IN-LAW
She Watches as Andres Swenson (Right) Greets Gov. Rockefeller at Airport

Rockefeller Takes Anne To Hideout

NEW YORK (UPI) — Steven Rockefeller brought his Norwegian bride home Monday to the Fifth Avenue apartment where they met when she was his family's kitchen maid.

Anne Marie Rasmussen Rockefeller entered the towering apartment house overlooking Central Park by the front door on the arm of her new husband.

When she worked as a maid for Gov. Rockefeller and his family, she used the servants' entrance.

ARRIVE IN MORNING

The newlyweds arrived in New York Monday morning by airplane from Norway with Steven's parents and a sister, Mrs. Ann Pierson, wife of a Chicago minister.

The party drove to the Rockefeller triplex apartment. A short time later, Steven, 23, and his 21-year-old bride left by automobile for a secret honeymoon hideout. The governor then went to his office to resume his state duties.

Blonde Anne Marie was shy in answering newsmen's questions at Idlewild International Airport, but her husband made a few comments.

HOPES FOR PRIVACY

Young Rockefeller said he hoped he and his bride could avoid newsmen during their wedding trip of a month or more.

It appeared possible that Steven

2 Die on Mountain As Help Arrives

FRANCONIA, N.H. (AP)—Two inexperienced climbers died on Profile Mountain Monday—a little south of the rocky features of the "Old Man of the Mountain"—just as rescuers reached them.

Alfred Whipple Jr.

Sidney Crouch

They had been trapped more than 24 hours on a ledge halfway up an almost perpendicular cliff. Near-freezing overnight temperatures and driving rain, like sleet, sapped their strength.

Rescuers clambering up the treacherous rock face were within 25 feet of the 475-foot-high ledge when they heard, "Please hurry, come quick." But the warm clothing and food brought by the rescuers came too late.

The dead climbers were Alfred Whipple Jr., 20, of Gales Ferry, Conn., a sophomore at Brown University, Providence, R.I., and Sidney Crouch, 21, of Ledyard, Conn., a student at Export (Pa.) Bible Institute. Most of their knowledge of climbing had been gained from books.

The route they undertook to climb Sunday on Profile Mountain —an arm of 4,060-foot Cannon Mountain in the White Mountains—

Judge Rips 'Rattlebrains,' Gives Brawlers 30 Days

Declaring "the good people of Atlanta cannot be made to suffer for the actions of rattlebrains," Municipal Judge Luke Arnold Monday sentenced two participants in a race battle to serve 30 days each in the city prison farm.

Arnold gave the sentence and blistering tongue lashing to Robert Harrington, 19, white of 275 Berean Ave., SE, and Robert Hill, 23, Negro of 511 Bedford PL., SE.

And the judge warned of equally harsh treatment for anyone who causes or participates in a clash involving whites and Negroes.

The melee early Sunday which resulted in the arrest of Harrington and Hill lasted less than 15 minutes, the judge said.

"Even at that, several dozen persons—including women in evening dresses—were slugging it out with everything from monkey wrenches to jack handles, tire irons and screw drivers," Arnold said.

"If a lone policeman hadn't stepped in and broken up the fight . . . if it had gone on for as much as two hours, we'd have had persons from 25 miles around charging into battle," he said.

"We would have had the na-

Burglar Frees 2 Cronies At Gunpoint in Ringgold

RINGGOLD (AP)—Night policeman W. A. McGraw surrendered two prisoners he had just arrested to a shotgun-armed man early Monday and all three escaped, the officer said.

McGraw said he spied three young men, wearing floppy hats, apparently trying to break into a hardware store.

"I drove down the street and had two of them arrested and in the car before they knew what was happening," the policeman said. "The third one ran away."

McGraw said that while he was driving around with the two prisoners looking for the third man, the fugitive cut him off with another car.

"He told me to get out of the car, and I did," McGraw related. "He then told me not to move. He said, 'If you move, I'll blow your brains out.' So I didn't move."

McGraw said the three fled in a car with no license plate.

Senate Sits On Rights Time Bomb

Hennings, Javits Bide Their Time

By ALBERT RILEY
Constitution Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Civil rights legislation lay on the table like a time bomb in the Senate Monday, waiting to explode into another North-South row when it is called up by Northerners as an amendment to a pending bill.

The authors of a whole series of these tough civil rights measures, Sens. Hennings (D-Mo), Keating (R-NY) and Javits (R-NY) can call them up at any time.

There were signs, however, that the civil rights advocates were waiting to see what comes out of a Senate-House Conference Committee on Labor Reform Legislation before making their move.

COMPROMISE EXPECTED

The labor bill conferees are expected to report out a compromise between the House and Senate versions by Wednesday.

Democratic and Republican leaders in the Senate would like to dispose of the labor legislation, if possible, before getting into a ruckus over civil rights.

However, both the majority and minority leaders, Lyndon Johnson of Texas, and Everett Dirksen of Illinois, said they want action on civil rights in the Senate before Congress adjourns.

Johnson said Congress ought not to adjourn before winding up its business just because Soviet Premier Khrushchev is coming to Washington Sept. 15.

DENIES STORY

Stung by a New York Times story that Eisenhower administration aides prefer to have no civil rights bill passed at this session, GOP leader Dirksen went to great pains to refute it.

Dirksen said he was "fairly close" to the administration and that he knows of no aides who want to postpone a civil rights bill this year so as to have it as a political issue in 1960.

If Democratic chieftain Johnson will push for action, Dirksen added, "he will have the administration and the Republican minority solidly behind him."

Johnson, whose hopes of getting a mild civil rights compromise through both houses of Congress this year seem to be fading, is known to have conferred at some length over the weekend with one of the top Southern opponents of such legislation.

DUCKS OUT

That Dixie senator ducked out of his office, however, while two Southern newsmen were waiting to see him.

Sen. Hennings, who already has served notice he will seek to bypass the Senate Judiciary Committee and call up a civil rights bill as a floor amendment, repeated his warning Monday.

The Missourian complained about the cancellation of another scheduled meeting of the Judiciary Committee, headed by Sen. Eastland (D-Miss).

50 Families Flee from Rebel Push

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP) — Panic hit the royal capital of Luang Prabang Monday as reports of Communist rebel attacks in the province reached the city.

About 50 families reportedly fled the city down the Mekong River.

Unconfirmed reports said rebels were operating within 30 miles of Luang Prabang, which lies north of this administrative capital.

KING LIES ILL

Aged King Sisavang Vong lies ill in Luang Prabang. Last week he turned over his full monarchial powers to his son, Crown Prince Savang Vatthana. The prince also is in the royal capital.

province are rife in the capital, but no confirmation is available.

Government offices in Vientiane clamped down tight on military news and issued no communiques. Only official reports said the situation was quiet with no reports of military action.

FOE IN 50 MILES

There were no further reports on Communist rebel units last reported operating within 50 miles of Vientiane and menacing its only road to southern Laos.

Other Communist rebel units are moving around a French tin-mining installation at Phon Tiou, 90 miles south of Vientiane in central Laos, informed sources said.

The sources believed that no French personnel have left the mining operation.

The mines are in Thakhet province where the government reported some rebel activity earlier. The French aid program is currently building a Thakhet-Vientiane road.

Hunt for Slaying Suspect Is Focused Here by FBI

Search for Larry Lord Motherwell, 42, wanted in connection with the slaying of a prominent Washington, D.C., woman, has been launched here by the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

An FBI officer said Motherwell, a 6-foot, 185-pounder, was last seen here about two weeks ago. He was said to have been living in a rooming house in the 700 block of Piedmont avenue, NE.

During the time he was here, the FBI said, Motherwell reportedly wore a black patch over one eye, and was going under the name of Allen Michael Dubar.

A federal warrant was issued in San Francisco Thursday charging Motherwell with unlawful flight to avoid prosecution for murder.

He is sought in connection with the killing of Mrs. Pearl Putney, wealthy Washington widow, who disappeared last August and whose bones were found August 16, 1959, in a lonely spot in Sierra County, California.

Motherwell previously had been convicted on charges of impersonating a military officer and

Alert Saves Family as Peril Stalks

By KEELER McCARTNEY

The James Anderson family was carrying a load of peril Monday as they rolled across Georgia in a car and a moving van, but they were unaware of the cargo.

Anderson drives a furniture moving van. Often he sets out from his home in Altoona, Pa., delivers a load of furniture somewhere and picks up another.

Frequently he is on the road for three months at a time.

The Andersons are a closely knit family. When Anderson's route carries his near home, he usually calls his wife.

Mrs. Agnes Anderson piles the family into the car and drives to meet her husband.

Last weekend Anderson was to have stopped in Birmingham. It was a long drive down, but Mrs. Anderson decided to make it.

The reason: the children wanted

Bomb Explodes At Hall High

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—A small, home-made bomb exploded outside recently integrated Hall High School Monday night, police said. Two white youths were taken into custody in connection with the incident.

No damage was done to the building. The bomb — or, police said, it could have been a large firecracker — had been placed against the north wall.

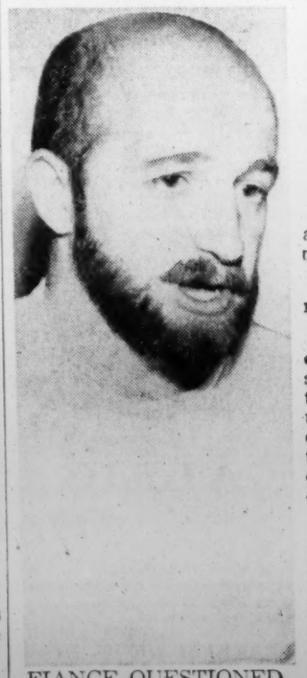
Screaming, Nude Girl Knifed And Slain at Fiance's Flat



FIANCE QUESTIONED
G. Robert Kinzie

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A nude coed who ran screaming from her attacker was found stabbed and dying in her fiance's flat Sunday night.

Police launched a search for a mysterious intruder as her slayer.

Linda Edna Martin, 21, a talented pianist and graduate music student, made a desperate effort to escape her assailant. She fled, unclothed and shrieking in terror, down a stairway to a side entrance, where she smashed a door's glass pane in a frantic effort to get away.

But she failed to break out, and collapsed inside. Officers found her there, bleeding from a stab wound in the right breast, her hands gashed by the shattered glass.

She died from loss of blood before she could identify the killer.

An autopsy report said she had not been raped. Dr. Don Harper Mills, deputy medical examiner, said a long, sharp weapon pierced her heart. He also found cuts on her chest and arms, a bruise around her left eye and bruises on her legs.

Neighbors who heard her screams and the breaking glass summoned police.

But one neighbor, Helen Lund, told of hearing a loud five-minute argument before the screams began.

Mrs. Lund, who lives on the first floor of the same building, added: "I recognized her voice and I recognized the voice of a man. I have heard that voice be-

Not 'Hot as Hades' But Infernally Hot

By TED LIPPMAN

Dante to the contrary notwithstanding, it was hot as hades in Atlanta Monday.

Ninety-five degrees. The humidity was 47 per cent.

The discomfort index hit 81—infernally discomfortable.

The 95 recorded here was just one degree below the summer's high. The thermometer steamed to 96 July 30 and July 31.

Georgia Power officials said late in the day that it looked like a record breaker to them. "The way demand has been going through the day, it looks as though this may be the heaviest demand yet," they said.

Hot, sticky weather means greater demand at the power company, as air conditioners and electric fans work like blazes to cool their owners off.

That high reading of 95 was out at the airport, of course. Meteorologists said it was easily anywhere from two to five degrees hotter in downtown Atlanta, where the streets and buildings have an oven effect.

Asphalt streets in the city turned a little gooey in spots as the sun baked and melted them.

Uneasy Herter Sees U.N. Action on Laos

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Secretary of State Christian A. Herter told congressional foreign policy leaders Monday he was "very much disturbed" over the Communist military offensive in the strategic kingdom of Laos.

He was quoted as saying the situation was "very dangerous" and might lead to United Nations action "before too long."

Herter made the comments before ranking members of the Senate Foreign Relations and House Foreign Affairs Committees during a 75-minute foreign policy briefing.

FULBRIGHT AGREES

Sen. J. William Fulbright (D-Ark.), chairman of the Senate committee, told newsmen afterward that only sketchy information was available on actual conditions in Laos. But he said Herter "thinks the situation is a very dangerous one." Fulbright agreed with this appraisal.

Dispatches from the area indicated the Communists may be trying to cut Laos in two at its narrow mid-section.

Spokesman Lincoln White said the State Department had no confirmation of reports that the rebels had plunged to within 50 miles of the Laotian capital of Vientiane.

He characterized the attacks up to now at least as hit-and-run tactics but conceded it was not known if the new fighting fell into that category. However, White specifically declined to endorse a statement by the British Foreign Office that the military situation was "deteriorating."

COUNTRY WANTS ACTION

Laotian royal government troops, trying to block a rebel uprising in two northern provinces, have charged that the rebels are being supplied and led by Communists in North Viet Nam and Red China. Laos has requested United Nations action.

Senate Democratic Whip Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), one of the 10 congressional foreign policy leaders who met with Herter, said he did not know what action, if any, the United States might take.

But he said he felt the United Nations should immediately send observers to Laos to get accurate reports.

Down to Earth Plan For Space Offered

(Copyright 1959 by the New York Times Co.)

LOS ANGELES—Pleas for revisions in the nation's space and rocket program to stress achievable goals, simplicity of equipment, and reliability of performance keynoted the opening Monday of a major national conference on missile and space technology.

Dr. T. Keith Glennan, head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, told a gathering of 1,000 scientists and engineers that the past year in rocketry had been characterized by "successful failures" and growing realization of our ignorance in space technology.

He said that many of the recommended programs should not be undertaken and that new emphasis should be placed on replenishing our depleted store of missile technology.

The space chief addressed the fourth symposium on ballistic missiles and space technology sponsored jointly by the Air Force's ballistic missile division and Space Technology Laboratories, Inc., the principal contractor in the Air Force's missile program.

House Unit Accepts Gas Tax Boost

By LEW HAWKINS

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Rayburn Monday pushed through a reluctant committee a proposal to raise the U.S. gasoline tax from 3 to 4 cents a gallon for a 12-month period to prevent stalling of the federal superhighway program.

After a series of conferences with his party leaders, the Texas Democrat announced approval of this compromise by 18 of the 22 Democrats on the Public Works Committee. This group last week balked after the House Ways and Means Committee had tentatively approved a 1-cent increase for a 22-month period. President Eisenhower had called for a boost of 1½ cents.

GORE PROTESTS

But while advocates of a gas tax increase appeared to be gaining ground in the House, a coauthor of the basic 1956 Highway Act, Sen. Gore (D-Tenn), called any such boost "wholly without justification." In its stead, he offered a measure to earmark 1 per cent of all 1959 general appropriations for the highway program.

Rayburn took personal charge of the threatened committee stalemate after describing the highway financing situation as "a little messy." The speaker earlier had opposed any gas tax advance but said in a news conference Monday: "We've reached the point now where we've got to get some money from some source."

CONFERS IN OFFICES

Rayburn's feeling that swift action is called for was underscored by the fact that instead of summoning committeemen to his offices in the House chamber he went to the House Office Building to meet with his colleagues in the office of Rep. Davis (D-Tenn).

Under the Rayburn compromise diversion of funds from new car, parts and accessories excise tax revenues would begin July 1, 1960, instead of July 1, 1961, as proposed under the bill approved by the Ways and Means Committee.

Cheering Congress Seats Hawaiians

(Copyright 1959 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—Hawaii, the 50th state, seated its three members of Congress Monday, with both houses and packed galleries roaring their welcome.

One new member, Hiram L. Fong, a Republican, was the first Senator of Chinese ancestry. Rep. Daniel K.Inouye, a Democrat, was the first of Japanese ancestry to enter the Congress. Sen. Oren E. Long, a Democrat, had been a presidentially-appointed Governor of Hawwaii while it was still in territorial status.

Senators and representatives pointed out the implications of this earnest welcome of Asians to the halls of Congress. Hawaii, it was emphasized, would become a show place example that freedom and dignity of the individual, American and Asiatic, could find common ground.

The new entrants brought the membership of the Senate to 100.

At present, the Senate stands, politically, at 65 Democrats and 35 Repulicans; the House at 283 Democrats and 153 Republicans, with one Ohio seat vacant.

Fire Blamed On Trusty's Cigaret

TOMS RIVER, N.J. (AP) — A prison trusty's cigaret, passed to a man in a padded cell, was cited Monday as the cause of an explosive fire that snuffed out eight lives in an overcrowded rural jail.

Ocean County Prosecutor Howard Ewart said one of two trusty inmates slipped a prohibited lighted cigaret or matches to a mentally ill prisoner, apparently as an act of kindness.

The resulting blast and fire flashed through the inside of the jail and trapped 65 screaming prisoners. The jail was built to hold 28.

Twelve persons—five of them rescuers—were injured.

The man in the padded cell was a 35-year-old Negro known only as "General Petersen." He was being held on a drunkenness charge. He was burned to death in his cell.

The other seven prisoners died of smoke poisoning and asphyxiation.

President Will Try To Reassure Allies

President Eisenhower's journey through Western Europe, beginning tomorrow, is an effort to close ranks among the Western Allies prior to the exchange of visits between the President and Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

There is a marked lack of enthusiasm over the meetings in some Western European capitals, especially in Paris and Bonn. They view the Khrushchev trip to this country as a major victory for Khrushchev himself and look askance at possible "deals" coming from any Big Two meetings.

Reportedly most West European leaders are jittery, especially Gen. de Gaulle in France. The latter has developed close ties with Adenauer in West Germany and is pushing for strengthening NATO. He feels he is being slighted just as he begins to make progress in rebuilding French prestige and power.

Chancellor Adenauer is reported to be strongly opposed to any move to hand Allied control of West Berlin to West Germany, a proposal now being talked about. That would force West Germany to recognize the East German Communists, in his view, and would be another way in which to undermine the whole West's position in Berlin.

The official London attitude is one of approval. Prime Minister Macmillan long has favored a more flexible approach to reducing East-West tensions. The British attitude is far apart from that of Paris and Bonn.

So the President's 10-day trip to Western Europe will be a personal attempt to bring some unity to the Allied camp and to reassure Western leaders about just what he is trying to do. He must convince them we have no intention of abandoning NATO nor of weakening the West's defenses.

The President, who has assumed greater personal command of his administration than at any time in the past, has some rough weeks ahead. It is important that he know firsthand the attitude of our other partners in the Western alliance. Otherwise, his meetings with Khrushchev could be disastrous to Western unity.

At any rate, let us hope for the best. While there seems little hope of any real break in the deadlock between East and West, at least we are still trying.

Let's Hope for Peace In City of Forest Park

Puzzled about why all those representatives don't get along better in the U.S. Congress?

Concerned because the West and the East can't get together on Formosa, the Middle East and Berlin?

Really, the failure to agree is not amazing.

Look closer at home. Look, for example, at Forest Park.

In that burgeoning Clayton County city, feuding and fussing have been the order of business until now the headline is expected daily.

We haven't analyzed all the issues there. We take no stand on who is right.

We simply say that when folks of the same community who speak the same language have so much trouble getting together, we learn to be more patient with the Arabians and the Israelis and others of unlike kinds.

Even were the Berlin issue settled and Formosa no longer an island of contention, there could be no peace in the world until a treaty has been signed in Forest Park.

Hawaii Happily Accepts Her Role as 50th State

By proclamation of the President, Hawaii last Friday became the 50th state. It was the climax of a series of events which began on Aug. 1, 1898, when the American flag first flew over the islands.

In the more than 60 years since that date, the people of Hawaii have worked to earn the rights and privileges of statehood. They now join the Union through their own choice and with the consent of the American government. It is truly an inspiring story.

"Today we stand as a state before the world," says the Honolulu Star-Bulletin. "As possibly no other state in history are we exposed to international gaze—for Hawaii is unique in that for the first time there is in the American Union a state a majority of whose citizens trace their ancestry to the Far East."

In their first state election, more than 90 per cent of eligible voters exercised the right of suffrage as they shed the last restraints of territorial limitation. They demonstrated fully their willingness to accept the responsibilities of full citizenship.

"This is in truth a day for surging pride," says the Bulletin in sentiments echoed throughout the nation. "It is also a day for humility. For as we emerge into the full light of statehood, we bravely accept not only the obligations which the states before us have accepted, but the obligation to show all the world proof that freedom and democracy can thrive in any climate if these qualities live in the hearts of men."

So the American Union is now that of 50 states. In welcoming Hawaii, few will disagree that it has richly earned statehood.

That Last Steam Ride Depends on Response

A proposed "last ride with steam" in Georgia will become only a dream unless rail fans back up their enthusiasm with a definite pledge that they will go along for the ride.

The excursion planned for Saturday, Sept. 19, from Atlanta to Gainesville via Athens is sponsored by a thoroughly responsible organization, the Atlanta chapter of the National Railway Historical Society. Two fine men, Dave Austin and Gordon Price, whose sole motive is interest in railroads, are the leaders. The Seaboard Railroad is furnishing the equipment.

The venture is purely nonprofit but it cannot be run off at a loss. The chapter needs a guarantee of a trainload if the "All Aboard" the morning of the 19th is to be assured.

If you have been planning to ride the steam train on excursion day and just haven't got around to saying so, now is the time to get in touch with the sponsors at P.O. Box 13132 and tell them to count you in.

Otherwise, they're going to have to call the whole thing off.

Are Schools Preparing Your Child for Future?

Parents who believe all the education their child needs is a little bit of the three Rs, with a little instruction in baton twirling to qualify as a majorette or perhaps a course or so in car driving or folk dancing, might consider the news from West Point.

For two and a half years the U.S. Military Academy has been making an evaluation of its curriculum. A certain amount of soul searching admittedly went into it. The academy had a tradition of subjects and methods.

But cadets who enter West Point in the future will encounter substantial changes. More nuclear physics, electronics, chemistry studies of the effect of radiation, more time for social sciences, foreign languages, greatly strengthened instruction in the fundamentals of written and spoken English and in logic and research techniques are the changes to be instituted this fall.

Now what does this mean?

Every university in the nation is busy doing exactly the same thing. Many already have done so.

The plain truth is we are coming rather close to the moment of truth. The question is, do we want to educate our children or not? A majority of the high schools in Georgia offer little or no education in physics or chemistry. Few outside the cities provide an adequate foundation in mathematics.

The unhappy fact is that most local communities, while giving lip service to education, do not put their money where their mouth is. The latest report shows Georgia next to last in the nation in local support of education. If the local unit of government can't find the money, isn't it about time to merge it or to make some bold move to unite school districts, consolidate schools and find a way?

Or are we content to have schools which can't educate? Or maybe no schools at all?

It's Time for Folks To Fear the Automobile

In Cincinnati these days folks are driving more carefully.

The Safety Council there says some people drive carefully because they are good citizens and some because they have been exposed to safety education.

But one of the main reasons is fear—fear of arrest, fear of doctor bills, fear of jail, fear of loss of insurability.

A combination of the reasons has brought a decline in the traffic death rate in Cincinnati although there has been a steady increase in the number of cars on the streets.

As long as that is the trend, one is encouraged regardless of the source of motivation.

But it is significant that some people are coming to respect the automobile as a potential killer.

It's about time the desire to live took hold in shaping behavior at the wheel.

Former Chicagoan Says Georgia's Proud To Be Part of Hustling, Industrial South

Atlanta—I moved with my family into Atlanta from Chicago four months ago.

My job takes me into or through almost every city, town and hamlet of this wonderful state of Georgia. To me Georgia is like an awakening, hungry giant, needing, wanting and demanding products, services and more and more of the necessities.

Georgia gives me the impression that she has washed off the last vestiges of the blood bath she received many, many years ago. Except for dirty spots here and there, Georgia is clean and proud. Cleaner and prouder than many Northern states whose dirt is their own.

I feel Georgia will solve its segregation problem without compromising the inherent democracy of the South in general or the dignity of Georgia in particular.

I find myself wishing I had lived here the past 10 years and hoping I will be here for the next 10. IRVIN E. BERGER.

Atlantan Offers Idea On Khrushchev Visit

Atlanta—President Eisenhower and other leaders have asked us to receive Khrushchev in a cordial manner. I don't propose that we show him any disrespect. I only offer a suggestion that every American wear a black tie or other garment of mourning during his visit, in order to honor the victims of Red aggression. We feel the solemnity of his visit and hope for world peace. In paying higher respect to our dead and imprisoned citizens and allies, we can call his notice to the fact that we are free men and not content with the peace of slavery or death. Black ties can be both cordial and solemn without undermining our spirit of friendship with the Russian people.

The idea is simple. Nearly everyone has a black tie or other solemn attire, or if not, can easily get it. We spend hundreds of dollars apiece in taxes to defend America from Red tyranny. Why not a dollar for a black tie? Khrushchev may not be impressed by our weapons and wealth, but a peaceful show of our determination for a just peace will make him take notice. JOSEPH A. EARLY JR.

'Are Voter's Rights Being Weakened?'

Americus—As an American citizen, free born, of sound mind and of legal age, I have been under the impression that we had certain inalienable rights set forth by the Founding Fathers of this country.

Among these rights is the fundamental right of self government whereby the citizens are granted the privilege of saying through the ballot how they will live and operate their state government. R. L. HARPER.

Slogan-Bearing Cars Called Detrimental

Atlanta—I have observed window stickers on the rear of a number of cars, bearing Georgia tags, with a slogan reading "Butcher Khrushchev—we don't want him in this country."

This kind of propaganda can only wipe out the recent improvement in relations between the two leading world powers and could cause annihilation of our entire civilization. The people displaying such stickers are "butchers" themselves of our efforts to reach a peaceful understanding with the Soviets.

Their outrageous display is degrading the country that has given them so much. S. S. TISON JR.

'Speeding Trucks Are Menace to Safety'

Atlanta—It was high time that the mayor — and others — took some action about the huge trucks with trailers, many of which are plainly overloaded, which are speeding on our highways.

I cross Memorial drive at Boulevard every night, and there is rarely a night that two or more great trucks do not fly through the intersection and make right hand turns without slowing down a fraction from what is obviously 50 miles or more per hour speed.

Recently I came in from Marietta one morning at the regular morning hour and a huge truck passed me four different times at terrific speed with the young driver apparently thinking it was smart from the smile on his face. He would cut in ahead of me, then, of course, on the up-grade slow down so much that I would drive past him. It upset me so much that I got off the expressway at the first opportunity. MRS. 40-Hour Work Week Is Best for State Employes

Who can squeeze out a tear for the state employes incensed by the recommendation that they work at least 40 hours a week? The big hullabaloo, with State Treasurer George B. Hamilton and State Auditor B. E. Thrasher arguing for a free hand in setting hours and Gov. Vandiver saying nobody should be working less than 40 hours, is a bit ridiculous.

If Messrs. Hamilton and Thrasher, or any other department head, can't keep personnel busy for 40 hours a week, then the departments are overstaffed. Somebody should be fired.

If there are peak periods when more than 40-hour weeks must be worked, then additional manpower should be hired for that period or personnel paid overtime.

We can see little excuse for shifting employes back and forth between long weeks and short weeks. It isn't fair to the worker. And, in the long run, it isn't fair to the taxpayer.

For one thing, the system is so easily subject to abuse. Department heads sometimes measure their own governmental and political importance by the number of personnel they direct. The temptation is to keep a larger staff on a short week.

We have neither heard nor, if we did, would we be impressed by, any argument that a 40-hour week overworks a state employe. Indeed, the ones we have observed at the Capitol seem to have sufficient time for relaxation during the workday to ward off any fatigue a decent workday might bring on.

No one means to disparage the work schedule of the many, many dedicated employes in state government.

But we have an idea that these people aren't the ones raising the ruckus about the time put in. Usually the clock-watchers and the gripers are the same.

Unless we badly miss our guess, the people of Georgia are sick of all the wrangling and only wish the state employes would settle down to earning the money they're being paid.

Any worker who isn't satisfied can always go into private business, where he'll be sure to put in 40 hours, or into business for himself, where he'll likely work 80 or more.

Free Speech At Chautauqua

Helen Griswold Whitney of Rome is fully aware that Chautauqua still operates at Chautauqua Lake, N.Y.

She writes, "I attended church services in the huge amphitheater in June . . . 6,000 in attendance. This figure holds all summer long for church services and concerts. In the true conception of free speech in America, speakers of all religious faiths, political beliefs and shades of opinion speak from the Chautauqua platform. The audience is educated, cultured people from all over the United States as well as Europe and the Far East. Theodore Roosevelt said of the Chautauqua, 'It is the most American institution in the country.'"

Jere Moore, Milledgeville editor-publisher, says editorially, "I believe I can count it a blessing that I remember Chautauqua."

Mankind's Losing Sense of Wonder

An old proverb says familiarity breeds disrespect. I wonder if it is not true more often that familiarity breeds indifference? I am thinking just now about life. In some ways this is the most important subject we can consider, for without life no other subject is meaningful.

But many of us are not concerned about life and we seldom pause in the midst of our fleeting years to ask such questions as these:

What is the purpose of my life? Where did I come from? Whither do I tend? How can I discover real values and how can I share these with other men?

Many things can be said about life. I wish to mention one thing in these paragraphs. Life is wonderful. By "wonderful" I mean that life is full of that which surprises, astonishes and excites us. It is shot through with that which is marvelous and miraculous.

We are living in an age when marvels are so commonplace that we hardly pause to contemplate them. Nothing excites us for long. The other day a single issue of a newspaper told of two exceedingly interesting achievements. One told of the Navy's new warning system by which we can detect missile action 5,000 miles away. The potentiality of this is unlimited not only for the protection of our shores but for other purposes for which it can be used. Most of us read the story with an "ho-hum" attitude.

The second story told of a paddlewheel vehicle which was put successfully into an orbit which stretches more than 25,000 miles from the earth. That it travels 22,000 miles an hour and circles the earth once every 12½ hours does not greatly excite us.

I am reminded that back in 1844 when Robert Morse perfected his telegraph the first words communicated were "What hath God wrought!" Did any of those who worked in the creation of the paddlewheel satellite or any of those who read about it say, "What hath God wrought!"

Arthur Clark, a scientist who wrote an article in the Saturday Review recently, speculates on the possibility of landings on the moon within 30 years and of interplanetary travel within the reasonable future. Then he adds this comment: "Perhaps the greatest contribution of space travel in the future is that it will restore a sense of wonder of the world."

The man of religious faith always has been aware of the wonders of life. His religion affirms that man is made in the image of God. God has breathed His breath into the lives of men. The Psalmist declared that man is a little less than God and crowned with glory and honor.

Don't let your life become common to you. Thank God for life itself. Guard your life. Cherish it as your richest possession. "What hath God wrought!"

Communists Delay Adequate Test Ban

WASHINGTON—Nothing could be more harmful to the cause of reaching agreement with the Soviet Union on ending nuclear tests than to allow the negotiations to get pushed into the arena of 1960 presidential policies. I don't mean that Sen. Hubert Humphrey is anything other than a sincere and dedicated advocate of finding some way to get an East-West ban on testing.

But he is faced with an understandable temptation. If a test ban can be brought about in the next six months he can't but feel that it would be a boon to his campaign for the Democratic presidential nomination since he has long been identified with this issue.

It seems to me that Humphrey has yielded somewhat to this temptation in his latest speech on the floor of the Senate.

He charges it is the President's "failure to assert leadership" which is jeopardizing the test-ban negotiations at Geneva.

He contends that "only one major issue" stands in the way of agreement with the Soviets and implies that if we would only put a little push behind it, the disagreement could be resolved.

The consequence, however unintended, of Sen. Humphrey's stance is to help persuade Premier Khrushchev that if he will just hold out long enough we will in the end accept a watered-down inspection system. I don't think the American government or the American people will accept a watered-down inspection system and, therefore, the effect of Humphrey's argument is either to delay agreement or to delay finding out whether the Soviets will accept dependable control.

Here are the three unresolved issues in the negotiations and you can see how each one involves a Soviet effort to put a veto into the inspection machinery.

Suspicious Explosions — Moscow wants to limit nonvetoable inspections in each other's territory to "a few." We propose freedom to inspect any unexplained explosion. We would be willing to agree to leave the number of nonvetoable yearly inspections to the judgment of the seismological experts on what would be a probable average. Moscow says no.

Staff Control Posts — Moscow wants the personnel control of post staffs in Russia to be at least 3-to-1 Soviet. We want the staff to have a majority of nonnationals in each other's country on the ground that anything else would provide an automatic veto.

Financial Control — On this point Henry S. Hayward, writing from Geneva for the Christian Science Monitor, reports: "The Soviets have amended their veto over the numbers of points of day-to-day control. But they still claim a veto over all budgetary and financial aspects of control posts — which in effect leaves them the power to wreck the entire project."

If the Soviets have any reason to think they can get a diluted inspection system, they'll sit and sit, talk and talk, wait and wait. The way to speed up an acceptable agreement is to show we will not abandon nuclear testing unless possibly illegal testing can be inspected freely.

Sitter's Vagaries Tie Pop to Sofa

The image of the American father as a clod who would rather go into coma on the sofa, than take his helpmeet out for a cha-cha is becoming an increasingly accurate stereotype. But nobody has pegged the real reason why old Joe Breadwinner prefers to moor hard to the davenport in preference to sallying forth on the town with his wife, who has been cooped up all day with those damn appliances.

It isn't "the pressures of modern living," despite 36 articles a month saying it is. It isn't inability to cope with "the new leisure." (All articles on "The New Leisure" are written by Luce sub-editors bucking for corporal.) It isn't malnutrition, unhappy childhoods, inability to relate nor is it that you-don't-love-me-anymore.

It is getting a babysitter.

Not that you can't get babysitters. Sure you can.

Nor that there aren't wonderful, excellent babysitters you look forward to. There most certainly are. But you should have called earlier, for she is booked up.

I mean if I can't get Mrs.——, for indeed that is her name, I would rather watch What's My Line, which I hate.

But you never get good old Mrs. Blank. She has a long-standing engagement with the Browns.

So who do you end up with, you there with the innocent motivation of running over to the party for a while?

Teen-agers? Maybe. I prefer them. Of course, you have to get home early, and your children are stacked up on the living room floor like cordwood, and the teen-ager is in a sleep so deep it requires you crawling through a bedroom window left open for the express purpose. And all the food is gone, all.

The other extreme is Mrs. Snide. I always get her. She's followed me around for years. She agrees to sit; her sinus is acting up, you understand. But she's noble. Pick her up at 8. Exactly. She's punctual. She lives a scant 12 miles from your hearthside.

I mean this old gal can really make your evening.

And yet somehow tonight I think I will just stagnate here on the couch. Call 'em up Marge, and say we couldn't get a babysitter. And change the channel while you're up.

C of C Here Offers Stopgap Tax Plan

A stopgap substitute for a controversial proposed gross business receipts tax to help boost city revenue was offered Monday by the executive committee of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce.

Briefly the new proposal, which reportedly will have the backing of business interests at a hearing at 2 p.m. Wednesday at the city hall, would require firms to pay a flat $50 license fee, plus an additional registration fee ranging from $10 to $50, plus $2.50 each for the average number of employes working for the firm.

The new money is needed to raise salaries of policemen and firemen and to hire additional policemen.

CONSULTANTS' PROPOSALS

M. Richard Felts Associates, city consultants who made the license for study, had recommended (1) a $50 minimum fee, (2) a graduated scale of $6 to $1 per employe depending on the numbers, and (3) a gross receipts tax based on volume ranging from $1 per $1,000 to 10 cents per $1,000.

Ald. John A. White, chairman of the aldermanic board's finance committee which will get the chamber's proposal, praised chamber officials for recognizing the need for more money to meet emergency fiscal requirements, but said he does not know how the controversy will end.

AWARE OF CITY'S NEED

Jack Adair, president of the chamber, issued a statement which said the "Atlanta chamber is aware of the immediate needs of the city for increased revenues to meet certain emergency measures as well as funds for long-range fiscal needs."

The chamber's statement termed the proposed gross receipts tax as highly inequitable." It also pointed out that the gross receipt proposal would not take into consideration the ability of firms to pay; that fixing a gross receipts tax "become political simply because various interested groups would seek favors pushing for lower rates."

MANY REASONS CITED

"In fact, we believe the net effect of a gross receipts tax would discourage the location of new business in the city proper," the statement continued. "There are many other valid reasons the chamber could give showing the inherent dangers involved to our business community by the imposition of a gross receipts tax."

A special meeting of the aldermanic board is scheduled for 2 p.m. Monday to act on some license revision program.

Spokesmen said the chamber's proposal would be only a stopgap measure for 1960. They said it would be followed by a complete study of city licenses with July 1, 1960, set as the deadline for a new program to replace in 1961 the chamber's stopgap proposal.

Candler Jones Sells His Tractor Company

Quality Tractor Co., which figured prominently in the Cadenhead investigation of the State Purchasing Department, has been sold by H. Candler Jones.

Jones, under one-to-three-year sentence imposed after conviction on charges of attempting to influence a grand juror, sold the firm to John Daniel Bowden Jr.

The company will be incorporated by the new owner. The board of directors will include A. C. (Pete) Latimer, Joseph Botdorf Jr., Thomas Webber and Mrs. Alice A. Bowden, wife of the new owner.

Methyl Drink Blamed for Death Here

One person was dead Monday and another critically ill apparently from drinking a preparation containing methyl alcohol, police said.

Howard Curtis Green, 49, of 3172 Mt. Gilead Rd., SW, was admitted to Grady Hospital early Monday and died several hours later.

Detectives J. C. Smith and W. B. Blackwell said they had been told Green complained of severe stomach pains after drinking liquid from a preparation used for heating and was rushed to the hospital.

Green lapsed into a coma soon after being admitted to the hospital and was unable to give a statement, they added.

Mrs. Daisy Mae Campbell, 42, of a downtown hotel, was admitted to Grady in critical condition. Detectives said Mrs. Campbell told them she and her husband drank the same preparation.

Detectives said they had been unable to locate Campbell.

Billy Graham

If You Would Recognize Our Father, Know His Son

QUESTION: What, in your opinion, is the ordinary man's conception of God?—S. M.

ANSWER: I'm sure the ordinary man's conception of God would be as varied as human personality itself. Some think of God as an "oblong blur" with no interest in our deeds good or bad and no concern for our troubles. One small boy defined God as "a man who lives away up in the sky, who, when He sees someone having fun tries to stop it." Others have a more mature conception of God and accord Him the reverence and respect He deserves.

If you would know what God is like, take a long look at Jesus. He said: "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." Jesus was kind and compassionate. So is God. Jesus was all-forgiving—so is God. Jesus was understanding—slow to condemn, quick to forgive. Jesus was no "respecter" of persons. He didn't see men as rich or poor, black or white, learned or illiterate. He looked through their outward appearances and saw the real person.

But, on the other hand, He didn't condone hypocrisy, deceit, greed or selfishness. He denounced the Pharisees as "whited sepulchres"; He herded the thieves out of the temple and reminded men that the way of the cross and Christian love was the only way to heaven. Our opinion of God is not nearly as important as His estimate of us.

12 Youths Attending Conference

Twelve teen-age members from Atlanta's Junior Achievement Program are delegates to the National Junior Achievement Management Conference being held this week on the campus of the University of Indiana in Bloomington.

They represent the 1,800 young businessmen and businesswomen who ran miniature businesses under the auspices of Atlanta Junior Achievement last year.

LARGEST IN WORLD

The conference is the focal point of national Junior Achievement business planning for the coming year, and is the largest business conference for teen-agers in the world. More than 1,000 boys and girls representing 285 Junior Achievement areas and 311 cities are attending.

They are discussing business problems, participating in contests for business acumen, and discovering ways of improving the performance of their duties in Junior Achievement companies. Atlanta's delegation left by chartered bus last Saturday and will return to Atlanta Saturday.

ATLANTA'S DELEGATES

Atlanta's 12 delegates and their schools are Sally Bass, Campbell; Linda Isgitt, Brown; Tom King, Sylvan; Patricia Scarbrough and Suzanne Sewell, Southwest; John LaPorta, Hoke Smith; Sherwin Marquardt, Hapeville; Richard Askue and Sue Logan, Northside; Douglas Beard, Brown; James Dean, Georgia State College, and John Piper.

Primer for the Stock Market

Utilities Can Be a Good Buy in a Strong or Weak Market

By HARRY KAHN JR.

The market "experts" will tell you it may be okay to buy ultilities if you want steady dividend income but don't buy them if you're looking for growth. These "experts" are as wrong as can be.

The fact is that utility stocks, with relatively small risk, not only can make you money in a good market; they can frequently make money, or at least keep you from losing it, in a weak market.

The fallacy is that because utilities are closely regulated they can't grow. Actually the regulation means that utilities are permitted—almost guaranteed—a 6 per cent return on their invested capital. They're not barred from growing, by any means.

Tenth of 12 chapters on stock investments by a prominent Wall street and Washington broker, who is also a university instructor in market analysis.

Add to this the fact that it's pretty hard nowadays to run a utility badly. You seldom hear of a utility falling on its face.

The utilities serve a perpetual and increasing demand. Rising population, the growth in home ownership and family formation, the flood of new appliances and uses, and the fact that utility service is the last thing dispensed with in a financial squeeze and the first thing restored when things get better—all these spell profit for the owners of utility stocks.

Public utility stocks—that is a stock of an electric, gas, telephone or water company—can be bought either for growth or dividend income, although it is possible to get both at the same time.

For some people the desire or need for income is so great that a stock must be bought primarily because it provides steady, high dividends even though it offers little promise of long-term growth in value. An outstanding example in the utilities field has been American Telephone & Telegraph Company.

AT&T has been paying dividends every year since 1881. From 1920 until this year, right through the great depression, those dividends have been $9 annually. (The recently approved 3-for-1 stock split carried with it a 10 per cent dividend increase.)

For 10 years, from 1947 until the imminence of the stock split began sending up the price late last year, AT&T sold at about $173 a share. Thus the $9 dividend represented a return of a shade over 5 per cent. In addition, AT&T's expansion needs led to periodic issuance of new bonds or shares of stocks, which were offered to stockholders at prices substantially below market value. When this extra value is figured in, the AT&T yield in recent years actually comes to between 7 and 8 per cent.

THEY PAID PRICE

But AT&T investors paid a price for that high, safe income—the failure of the stock, until just recently, to increase in value over all the years of inflation, when many other stocks were doubling and some were going up 400 and 500 per cent and more.

Now contrast the AT&T story with that of General Telephone Co., which now operates in 30 states but which cannot compare in size, patent control or any other way with AT&T.

Over the last decade General Telephone has been paying less than 5 per cent. But it has been swallowing up smaller companies right and left and has risen in value from $15 to $70. So, for people who could afford the risk and who could do without maximum dividend income, General Telephone was a far better investment than AT&T over the past 10 years.

There are hundreds of smaller phone companies in which I see quite fascinating possibilities for growth.

Similar choices between yield and appreciation are provided in other segments of the utility industry.

Over the past decade the demand for electrical power has grown each year. Some analysts believe the demand will continue to double every five years into the indefinite future.

Stoves, TV sets, air conditioners, dehumidifiers, washers and driers, dishwashers, mixers, blenders, phonographs — all use electricity, and some of them, notably stoves and air conditioners, use a lot of it. In business and industry, air conditioning, automation, electronic controls and bookkeeping are pushing the need for electricity still higher.

That's a bright picture, and nearly all electric companies bask in its glow. But some benefit more than others. Those are the ones to look for if you're interested in growth stocks. For example, in recent years Florida and California have grown more than New York and New England, and their utilities have reflected the boom.

INCOME OR GROWTH?

Whether to emphasize income or growth in selecting your electric utility stocks depends on your own particular needs. But as a yardstick I suggest that a return of 7 per cent is excellent; a return of 3 per cent is quite low. A price-earnings ratio of 10 to 1 in this field is a good buy; 20 to 1 is, except in very special circumstances, too high.

Another yardstick: Generally, a utility with more than 40 per cent of its business in supplying industry is relatively unattractive in bad times, since industry is much more likely to cut its demand sharply than are residential users. Thus Potomac Electric Power in Washington, D.C., is an excellent buy for uncertain times, since the percentage of its business coming from industry is extremely small.

Local gas-distributing companies bear a close resemblance to the electric and phone companies, sharing in the growth of the country generally and the special growth of their own areas.

THE METALS — The investor will find here the seeds of fabulous profits. Unfortunately they are well mixed with the seeds of disastrous losses.

The metals are highly volatile industries. When the economy sets off on an upswing, metals business—and profits—not only rises but skyrockets. When the economy begins to taper off, metals don't just level off, they plummet.

It's not hard to see why this is true. The metals—steel, copper, aluminum, lead and zinc especially—are basic items in the building of new plants, homes, new machinery, ships, autos, appliances, pipelines and other items in great demand when good times come along.

Firms planning to expand and modernize plants, or to boost production, not only place orders for their immediate needs but, sensing the upturn in the economy and trying to beat the inflationary price rises they see ahead, order more materials than required immediately.

When the boom is about to die, the reverse is true; the metals industry is sent into shock by a drop in demand far in excess of that directly involved in the economic leveling off.

The metals investor must be exceedingly well informed and very cautious. He must watch carefully the prices of the metals themselves. When a drop starts in metal prices, there is a good chance it will keep going. And there is an even better chance that the drop will be reflected in stock prices. In 1957, copper dropped from 46 cents a pound down into the 20s. And Kennecott Copper dropped from $147 to $83 a share.

There's even a rough rule of thumb that some brokers use: For every drop of 1 cent a pound in a metal price, there is likely to be a decline of $1 a share in earnings.

DEFENSE ANGLE

Uncle Sam is deeply involved in the metals business, indirectly through his huge defense contracts and other government buying, and directly through stockpiling of metals, metal subsidies and other programs. Building up the stockpiles tends to raise the price of the metal involved; reducing the stockpiles weakens prices.

Metal investors must study closely such advance indicators as the price of steel and other metal scrap. When steel scrap drops, it is usually a sign that supplies of steel are high and output is about to be cut. When the scrap price rises, it usually means that producers are ready to boost output to meet demand.

Other indicators to be watched are those which show trends in industries which are prime customers of the metals—for example, auto sales and inventories, commitments for new home building, business plans for plant and equipment expenditures. It was obvious that the cutback in auto sales and auto production in 1957 and early 1958 dealt a staggering blow to the steel industry. A slump in housing is bound to have its deadening effect on aluminum and copper.

In addition to being cautious and well informed the metals investor must be truly independent of the pack if he wants to turn a profit. Here, more than anywhere else, the smart investor must be ready to buy when the economic pendulum is swinging downward and to sell when things seem to be at their rosiest.

In some industries, such as utilities or oils or chemicals, it's often best to hold on during the slumps and try to weather the storm. But in the metals it is frequently a good idea to take your profits when you can, switch to some other field, and then return to the metals when the economy has hit bottom.

In the case of many metals, there is a special element of hazard—the long-term consumption outlook. The steel industry has, over the years, grown steadily and well. Each decline starts from a higher point and doesn't seem to go as far down as the previous one.

ALUMINUM OUTLOOK

For some other metals a similar long-term growth curve is likely, but for still others the outlook is not as bright. For example, the Paley report on the nation's resources predicts the demand for aluminum in 1975 will be five times that of 1950. That's a much greater growth than the mere 45 per cent increase predicted for copper. It seems reasonable to conclude that for the long haul aluminum is the better buy.

But when you read about the wonders of titanium, hafnium and tantalum and zirconium and beryllium, remember that, while they may be the miracle metals of the day, fashions in the metals field change almost as rapidly as in women's wear, and investors have been badly hurt by premature involvement.

Despite the enticing stories, new metals pay off only when their producers begin to market them profitably. Don't buy merely on the basis of experimentation. Either wait until the product has clicked commercially or—if you insist on getting in on the ground floor—buy the securities of a producer who has a diversified output and therefore won't be too critically damaged by a lemon.

If you are still determined to go into a small, nondiversified company producing an untried metal, remember that you are taking a flier and that you should wait for an attractive price before buying. The odds will be against you, but perhaps you will hit it right.

SMALL, LARGE FIRMS

Let's assume you've decided the company is right for you to buy a steel company stock. What factors should you weigh?

Some firms are completely integrated — that is, they conduct the entire manufacturing process from the mining of the ore to the fabricating of the final product. Some are completely diversified—that is, with a wide range of consumer, industrial, and manufacturers' products. Others specialize—they turn out stainless steel, or heavy plate, or oil pipe, or some other single product, and not much else. Some, of course, are clearly better managed than others.

My general feeling is that the smaller companies can be far more profitable for the investor than the giants can if—and this is a very big "if"—he is convinced that there is a steady, strong, and lasting demand for this particular specialty. If the investor doesn't know this about any one company, then he would probably do better investing in one of the big ones.

About other metals, much the same comments can be made except that in this area companies are diversified not so much in a variety of products as in a variety of metals.

For example, Anaconda Copper now gets substantial revenue from such non-copper sources as uranium and aluminum. American Smelting & Refining, one of the largest processors of lead and zinc, has expanded in recent years into asbestos, copper and other metals.

The aluminum industry is unique among the metals in that it is made up completely of giants or near giants—the Aluminum Co. of America, Reynolds Metals, Kaiser Aluminum—so great is the cost of going into aluminum production.

Some Gray Market Cases Found Violating Law

Some local "gray market" cases definitely come under a statute prohibiting bringing children into Georgia for adoption without notifying welfare authorities, it was learned Monday.

Fulton County Welfare Administrator Wellborn R. Ellis cited the code section as Sol. Gen. Paul Webb's office began looking into Ellis' report on 86 local "gray market" cases.

Asst. Sol. Gen. Walter LeCraw, who is handling the matter for Webb's office, conferred Monday with Ellis on the cases he turned over to the jury.

USUALLY NEED WRIT

One of the big questions yet undecided is how names of persons involved in such cases can be divulged. They usually are not disclosed without a Superior Court order.

Regarding the code section, Ellis cited Section 99-209, which says, "No person shall bring or send into the state any child for the purpose of placing him or procuring his adoption without first filing notice" with the State Welfare department.

"Some of these cases fall within the purview of that law without question," Ellis said. "Some undoubtedly are cases where money changed hands in other states."

The statute requires each person bringing a child into the state for adoption to file a $1,000 bond with the Welfare department, conditioned on his not bringing an incorrigible or child of unsound mind into the state.

It also requires filing with the department the name, age and personal description of the child the name and address of the person with whom the child is to be placed and a yearly report on the location and well-being of the child.

PENALTY PROVIDED

Ellis also pointed to a second statute, Section 99-9902, which provided misdemeanor punishment for violation of the above law or for making false statements in connection with such cases.

The welfare administrator last week reported to a Fulton Grand Jury committee on some 86 cases, about half of which involved interstate placements—parents from Fulton who adopted children from other states, or vice versa.

Because its term is about to expire, the present July-August term may not take any action on the cases, but may make a recommendation to the next term jury on what further investigation should be made.

Dr. Hackney To Ask More Health Funds

The Fulton County Health Board will be asked to approve an expanded budget Thursday to finance increased health services next year, Dr. James F. Hackney, county health commissioner, said Monday.

Just how much of an increase will be sought was not disclosed by Dr. Hackney. He said he would announce the figures to the board.

But he said there would be "some increases" over this year's $1,621,868 boudget. He attributed this mostly to the board's moving into new buildings which are now under construction or in advanced planning stages.

MOVING TO CENTER

The department late next year will move into a central health center near Grady Hospital, which is two-and-one-half times as large as the present center. The building will be air-conditioned and electrically heated.

Also to be occupied next year will be the West End Health Center, of which Dr. Hackney said construction is "moving along good;" the Rockdale Health Center addition, the Northeast Health Center and possibly a new East Point Health Center on Spring avenue.

EXPANDED SERVICES

In the matter of expanded services, Dr. Hackney pointed to the nursing program which was expanded this year to home-bound mental patients. The number of patients served by the program in July had increased to 265.

Department Administrator John W. Lemon said more public health nurses are needed to cut down the per population load on nurses. He said this has risen from 7,150 in 1952 to 7,900 now.

Road Aid Sought at Gainesville

Constitution State News Service

GAINESVILLE — Robert B. Struble, president of the Toccoa-Stephens County Chamber of Commerce Monday urged Gainesville to join his group fight for a federal study of the interstate highway 85 route.

"Gainesville needs the interstate highway as much as we do. It would behoove Gainesville to act now if there is to be a chance of locating the road where it will serve the most people for the dollars to be invested in it."

Struble said the Toccoa group has asked the federal bureau of public roads for the second time to check the route against the criteria for locating roads.

Struble contends that, by actual measurement, the upper route would be 68 miles from the present Suwannee terminus to the state line.

It would carry the road by Gainesville, Cornelia and Toccoa. The middle route, supported by Gov. Vandiver, would be 67.7 miles long, Struble said.

Gainesville-Hall County C. of C. President Ed Jared said: "I don't feel it necessary to become directly involved at this time."

MOBSTER COHEN LECTURES

Attorney Slips Bar a Mickey

By ANTHONY LEWIS

MIAMI BEACH—Leaders of the American Bar Assn. fumed Monday over an unscheduled intrusion into their annual meeting by Mickey Cohen, the West Coast mobster.

Cohen turned up Sunday at a seminar on legal tactics. He was introduced as "Professor O'Brien," an expert on tax evasion and other criminal cases.

How and why he got there was the topic of total confusion for hours. Things did not get any simpler when Miami detectives questioned him about a murder in Chicago.

As to the murder, Cohen denied all. The victim was Fred Evans, a one-time gangster who was shot in Chicago last Saturday—while Cohen was visiting that city.

"They should let somebody know when they are going to kill somebody," Cohen told reporters after his talk with the detectives.

As for the lecture, it turned out to have no official connection with the American Bar Assn. The source of the story connecting Cohen and the ABA was Cohen.

It seems that Cohen came to Miami Beach at the invitation of Melvin M. Belli, a San Francisco trial lawyer.

For 10 years Belli has run a private one-day seminar on trial tactics at the time and place of the ABA's annual meeting or that of the National Association of Claimants' Compensation Attorneys.

Belli explained Monday that he usually produces "odd and interesting guests" at his seminars. This year's choice was Cohen, whom he recently defended in Los Angeles against a charge of assaulting a policeman. After one mistrial Cohen pleaded guilty and was fined $200.

Anyway, Cohen flew into town and told everyone that he was going to the Fontainebleau Hotel to "lecture the bar association about the evils of crime." This infuriated the association and seemed to embarrass Belli a little.

About 600 lawyers paid $10 each to attend the seminar. Belli said most of this would go for a scholarship fund at the University of Miami and the rest to the "Belli Foundation," which he said prepared material for legal education.

Central High Lets Second Negro Enter

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—Another Negro student entered Central High School Monday as Little Rock began its second full week of integration.

Carlotta Walls, 16-year-old senior, said after classes that the atmosphere inside the school was better than in 1957.

She was among the nine Negroes who integrated Central under federal troop protection that year.

The Walls girl, who has been attending summer school at Chicago, was almost unnoticed on her first day at Central.

Police still guard Central and Little Rock's other integrated school, Hall High.

Three Negro girls attend Hall.

Imam Cuts Off Christian Heads

ADEN, British Protectorate (UPI)—The Imam of Yemen has beheaded several "Christian agitators" and had others mutilated in a crackdown on liberal reforms instituted during his four - month rest cure in Rome, reports reaching Aden said Monday.

The reports said the bearded Imam, an absolute monarch in his poverty-stricken country on the heel of the Arabian peninsula, was determined to smash the reform program instituted by his son, Crown Prince Badr during his absence.

There was no immediate word on Badr himself. While the 64-year-old Imam was in Rome with a large entourage of men and women for treatment of arthritis and other ailments, the prince was reported to have liberalized the life and death powers of the monarchy.

The Imam returned home two weeks ago in anger and was reported to have said in a speech:

"I swear by Allah that I'll behead every black and every white whenever a complaint is submitted to me against him.

"There have been some misdeeds by hooligans and vainglorious fools and lackeys of foreign agents. I have been deeply dismayed to hear of killing, marauding and threats to personal safety and public peace.

"Christians and their agents" will be severely dealt with, he said.

"Thank God I know them and they are now in my grasp. Some will have their heads cut off, others their legs and hands."

According to the reports from the Yemeni border, the beheadings and mutilations have begun.

Police in Africa Club Women Stone Tossers

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Police used clubs to disperse about 200 African women who stoned them near Camperdown Monday.

The women were marching toward Camperdown — a village about 35 miles inland from Durban — to see the native commissioner.

African women of Natal province have been restive for two weeks over government regulations on travel of Africans, and rules intended to modernize African agriculture.

fore up there. I would recognize it if I heard it again."

G. Robert Kinzie, 27, bearded, balding art student who occupied the flat, told police he had been at an automatic laundry with three male friends, arriving home at 1:25 a.m. Monday. Officers accepted his explanation.

Miss Martin was an accomplished pianist and harpist. Like Kinzie, she was a graduate student at nearby University of Southern California.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Martin of nearby North Hollywood, said they knew Kinzie but were not aware the couple planned to marry.

The girl lived in an apartment with another student about nine blocks from Kinzie's place. Her neighbors heard her playing the piano—"Danse Macabre" was one number—earlier in the evening. Sometime after 10 p.m. she rode her bicycle to Kinzie's apartment. Her screams were heard at 10:37 p.m.

Police said they found Miss Martin's clothing, hanging or neatly folded, in the bathroom of Kinzie's flat. In a closet were a woman's nightgown and robe.

Miss Martin, detectives said, may have taken, or been about to take, a bath. The ground-floor front door to Kinzie's flat was ajar when officers arrived. There was no evidence of a struggle.

Bloodstains started in the hallway near the bathroom door. In her flight to escape, Miss Martin had crossed this hallway and gone down the stairs to the side entrance.

Police say coeds have been warned repeatedly against walking or bicycling in the neighborhood after dark, because of repeated complaints of attempted rape, exhibitionism and molestation by male prowlers.

Police said Kinzie gave them this account:

Miss Martin had a key to his flat and visited him there occasionally. He spent much of Sunday at a campus ceramics laboratory, where he is an assistant. Miss Martin dropped by about 4 p.m., chatted briefly with Kinzie and his three friends, and he told her he probably would be home late. That was the last time he saw her alive.

Later, after visiting the laundry and dining at a market lunch counter, Kinzie and his friends spent the rest of the evening at a coffee shop.

Miss Martin's father said she breakfasted at home Sunday.

tional guard, the state troopers and perhaps the army trying to restore order," The Judge said.

SPEAKS OF EXPERIENCE

Arnold said his 20 years' experience on the bench taught him that the good people on both sides—whites and Negroes wanted no trouble.

"If I had my way about it," he said, "I'd fence off a pasture somewhere, put these agitators in it armed with baseball bats and let them beat each other's brains out.

Harrington posted a $50 collateral on a charge of drunk and disorderly conduct-fighting and failed to appear at court. Arnold promptly issued a warrant for his arrest and had him brought into court Monday afternoon.

Hill was tried at the morning session.

LONE OFFICER ACTED

A lone member of the police night watch, Patrolman C. L. Somers, broke up the melee early Sunday at Spring and Alexander streets, NW, and arrested Harrington and Hill.

Hill said he and several companions were en route to the bus station and had stopped for a traffic light at Spring and Alexander streets, when several white persons on the sidewalk shouted: "I want the big man."

Hill maintained that the group attacked him.

Harrington told the court the Negroes attacked him and his companions.

"I was just trying to defend myself," he said.

As Arnold read out the 30-day sentence, Harrington said: "Sir, I was going to join the Army today—please let me."

"I can't let you join anything but the city prison," the judge replied.

Youths Die On Cliff as Aid Arrives

—has long been shunned by experieced mountaineers.

John E. Taylor, 29, of Princeton, Mass., who led a group of seven Appalachian Mountain Club climbers following the trail the Connecticut pair left—475 feet nearly straight up—talked with one of them before he died. Taylor was not sure which one.

NOT ENOUGH CLOTHES

Both were dressed inadequately in light cotton trousers and shirts. Taylor said one of them was alive enough to speak but the other was slumped over and either was already dead or died shortly afterward.

They had tied themselves to the ledge. But their pack had dropped over the cliff. The climbing party saw it on the way up but did not attempt to retrieve it.

David Sanderson of Portsmouth, N.H., climbed to the ledge and lowered the youth most alive to Robert Collins of Brookline, Mass., standing 25 feet below. Collins dressed the youth in warm clothing but at that point he died.

WINDS 'FEROCIOUS'

The rescuers described the 50-mile winds on the mountain as "ferocious."

The long, hard climb, exhausting the rescuers, had tragic ending. First came word by radio to rescue headquarters that the youths had been found. They were in bad shape and delirious. Then came word that they just had died.

Late Sunday, it was discovered that they were trapped halfway up the great granite wall that towered above the trees and heaped boulders.

The young men were at a spot where no helicopter could reach them, for they were clinging to a ledge or outcrop of a mountain wall rising at a 90-degree angle.

Rescue teams, amateur rock climbers, responded to the call of New Hampshire state officials and the Appalachian Mountain Club.

But this was no ordinary rock climbing.

SLOW CLIMB

It was not until this forenoon that the spearhead of several rescue crews started up the mountain.

After they had scaled the heaps of shattered rock and boulders at the base, the real climbing began. In one hour they gained 100 feet.

As they went, they hammered iron pitons into rock crevices. And they lashed themselves to the mountain wall while they crawled upward.

The night had been cold on the mountain. Temeratures slid down to 38 degrees. The day brought increasing rain, whipped by rising winds with gusts up to 50 miles an hour.

Steven, Anne Marie Leave for Hideout might take his bride to meet his 85-year-old grandfather, John D. Rockefeller Jr. at his summer home at Seal Harbor, Me., before beginning their honeymoon trip.

"As far as our plans go, we would like to have the next month to ourselves, or however long we will be away," Steven said.

His father, who stood behind the couple, added:

"They're going to disappear with our cooperation. I certainly think they are entitled to some privacy without the family or the press trailing them."

Anne Marie was composed, but so reticent when questioned that Steven told newsmen, "I think Anne Marie would rather not answer any questions right now, in view of the fact that we're just back and we have had a long trip."

There was only one familiar face at the airport to greet Anne Marie. Her policeman uncle, Andrew Swenson, 52, kissed the bride of three days. It was Swenson who sponsored Anne Marie's admission to the United States three years ago when she came to work as a housemaid and improve her English.

Steven, who has inherited an estimated $40 million of the fortune built by his great grandfather, John D. Rockefeller Sr., said that he and Anne Marie probably will live in New York, not with his family.

Quitman Rapist Given 20 Years

QUITMAN (AP)—An 18-year-old Brooks County Negro was convicted Monday night of raping the mother of four children. The white, male jury recommended mercy and fixed sentence at 20 years.

Judge George Lilly of the Southern Judicial Circuit pronounced sentence on the Negro, Vernon Brooks, soon after the verdict was brought in. Sol. Gen. Bob Humphries had sought the death penalty. Court-appointed attorneys W. H. Long and S. Spencer Bennett, both of Quitman, said they would not appeal the verdict.

6-HOUR DEBATE

The jury reached its verdict after deliberating 6 hours and 15 minutes.

Brooks received the verdict impassively and was led away by Sheriff R. W. Jones.

"We fought for 15 minutes while I begged for my life," testified the nervous brown-haired woman. She told the jury that the Negro seized and raped her while she was fishing at a pond April 28.

The state introduced as evidence a twisted piece of rope which the woman said her attacker placed around her throat.

CLOTHES EXHIBITED

Defense attorneys produced the clothes they said the white woman was wearing at the time of the incident. They pointed out to the jury that none of the buttons was ripped off the blouse and neither her pedal pushers nor panties were ripped.

They also produced three members of a Negro family who lived at the edge of Quitman, who testified Brooks had been at their house during the time the offense was reported to have occurred.

Ringgold Power Offer

The city of Ringgold will make its "final" offer to buy the Georgia Power distribution system at Ringgold at a meeting in Atlanta Tuesday, Mayor Marvin F. Martin said.

Martin, a leader in a move to bring Tennessee Valley Authority electricity to Ringgold, said Monday that city officials would make their proposal to Jack McDonough, GPC president.

The city council has said it prefers service through the North Georgia Electric Co-operative Membership Corp., a TVA co-op with headquarters at Dalton, but that it will build its own distribution system and buy TVA power direct if necessary.

Aid for Farmers

Made available this year to help Georgia farmers improve their land under short-term cost-sharing contracts was nearly $3,000,000 more of federal money.

John F. Bradley, state farm stabilization and conservation administrator, announced Monday that $2,900,000 of extra money was provided by authorizing county Agricultural Conservation Program committees to over-obligate their 1959 allocations by 20 per cent. The money, he added, will be charged against 1960 funds.

'Hot as Hades' Overheard in Sizzling City

asphat did in the eighth circle of Dante's inferno. Anyway, an unofficial poll indicated that 97,349 Atlantans said, "Boy, it's hot as Hades!" at least once during the day.

Monday's 95 was just two degrees under the hottest Aug. 24 since the weather bureau started keeping records. In 1938 the thermometer read 97 on the same date.

No relief is in sight. Forecast for Atlanta for Tuesday and Wednesday is for more partly cloudy, hot, humid weather. There's a slight chance of thundershowers in the afternoons and evenings both days.

Tempertaures are expected to range from 72 to 94 each day.

Temperatures are expected to range from 76 to 96 in south Georgia and 66 to 88 in the north part of the state.

Atlanta's low Monday, if anybody's interested, was 71.

Plane Hits Street

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — A Jordanian royal air force training plane crashed in flames in a street in the outskirts of Amman Monday, killing both crewmen. Bystanders escaped injury.

Khrushchev and Satellite Bosses Confer at Communist Summit

LONDON (UPI) — Soviet Premier Khrushchev Monday was reported conferring with leaders of other Communist states, including Red China, at a Black Sea resort in preparation for his talks with President Eisenhower next month.

Both Communist and Western governments stepped up diplomatic activities in advance of the series of historic meetings which will begin this Thursday when Eisenhower flies to Bonn to confer with West German Chancellor Adenauer.

Diplomatic sources said Khrushchev consulted with individual satellite officials at his summer retreat. These talks apparently were substituted for a projected "Red summit" meeting of Communist leaders which was to have been held in Moscow this month.

Communist sources said Khrushchev was not likely to visit Red China before his trip to Washington. But they said he might do so after his American tour.

Red China has been reported quite cool to the idea of Khrushchev-Eisenhower meetings.

The Soviet leader was reported emphasizing the German and Berlin problems in his Black Sea resort talks. But Soviet sources in London discouraged any expectation that Khrushchev would make some spectacular move to end the Berlin crisis he himself started last November when he demanded that the Western allies leave West Berlin.

Diplomatic sources said the latest salvo of letters from Khrushchev to Adenauer, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and French President Charles de Gaulle indicated nothing new in Russia's approach to diplomatic issues.

Although details remained secret, some sources said they believed the letters simply reiterated the Soviet list of unacceptable demands which forced a deadlock at the recent Big Four Foreign Ministers Conference in Geneva.

Mission to Moscow

GENEVA (AP) — A special mission of the International Labor Organization left for Moscow Monday to study whether Soviet workers are free to associate in labor organizations of their own choice.

FIRST FEDERAL SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION OF ATLANTA

An open invitation to the Steel Union:

Join us in a forward step

Steel companies are spending billions of dollars to modernize mills, methods and products.

But America, the world's greatest steel user, can never enjoy the full benefits of this multi-billion dollar program until the steel companies' labor agreements are as modern as the machinery in the mills.

The steel companies extend this invitation to the Union:

Join us in taking a forward step to help reduce wasteful, out-of-date practices; help pave the way for increased production, improved productivity, and resulting savings which can be shared by employees, stockholders and the public—without contributing to inflation.

Specifically, we have asked the Union to co-operate with us in:

1. Improving the language and the spirit of the labor agreements to bring them up-to-date with modern operations and to reduce causes of misunderstanding and friction that have developed in the past;
2. Protecting thousands of innocent workers by discouraging irresponsible acts of a lawless few who engage in unauthorized or "wildcat" strikes;
3. Retarding further inflation by dropping the experimental cost-of-living adjustment clause in the 1956 agreements. This clause, intended to spare steelworkers from the effects of inflation, has proven to be itself inflationary and thus self-defeating. All of the 17¢ an hour added to wage rates under the clause since 1956 would be retained.

These contract changes, accompanied by a co-operative attitude on the Union's part, would, we believe, pave the way to enable the companies to generate new economic progress to be shared with their employees.

Accordingly, in return for agreement on these contract changes we have offered to negotiate a non-inflationary two-year agreement providing an increase in pension and insurance benefits this year, and a modest increase in wages next year.

Such an agreement would place the steel companies in a stronger position to compete with other materials and with imports of foreign-made steel . . . It would give employees improved benefits, higher wages and greater job security . . . It would help hold the line against inflation.

This proposal does not threaten the basic rights of Union members in any way.

The companies recognize that the Union has a responsibility—and a legal right—to represent the interests of its members. The Union, on its part, should recognize that the companies have the right and obligation to manage their plants to the maximum benefit of employees, shareholders, and the public.

In these modern times, with great progress already achieved and even greater progress visible on the horizon, cooperation—not opposition—is the mark of real leadership.

Only with a cooperative attitude on the part of the Union and its leadership can the steel industry fully meet the needs of America and help curb inflation.

We urge the Union to join us in taking this forward step.

IN THIS WEEK'S SATURDAY EVENING POST

ALTHOUGH most experts argue about how much radioactive fallout is safe, they all agree on one thing: the risk will grow worse before it gets better—and fallout will increase for seven or eight years, even without further bomb tests!

In this week's Saturday Evening Post, you'll discover how the radioactive particles that are released after each atomic blast have polluted the air we breathe, the water we drink, the food we eat. You'll learn how the reports confirm an existing danger—and you'll read a penetrating analysis of this disturbing situation.

If you have ever asked yourself . . .

- how can I learn the truth about fallout?
- what price must my children and their children pay for our atomic arming?
- is fallout causing a rise in leukemia and bone cancer?

. . . and if you want to find out why the United States is faced with a growing danger from radioactivity . . . you must read "Fallout: The Silent Killer."

It's never too late to serve God

What would you do if a successful career and marriage left you unfulfilled at middle age? Thousands of men are finding new lives of service as Christian clergymen. You'll share their moving—sometimes difficult—experiences in "Parsons-Come-Lately."

Having a baby?

Every mother-to-be—and mother—should read the saga of the bouncing best seller Infant Care. (It's the 15-cent Government book that 40,500,000 mothers have used.) You'll find some startling changes since you were a baby in "Were You Boiled as a Baby?"

Relax and live longer

to show their father "Peppy," the new chihuahua they had acquired since he left home on the latest tour three months ago.

When Mrs. Anderson arrived in Birmingham, "Peppy" was sulking under the front seat. Thinking he suffered from the heat, they offered him water.

"Peppy" nipped Patty, the Anderson's nine-year-old daughter. Anderson carried his daughter to a hospital and took "Peppy" to a vet.

The vet said he did not believe the dog to be rabid, but suggested that he be held for observation and shipped home. Taking no chances, physicians treated Patty.

Later it developed that "Peppy" had bitten Sandy, 10-year-old daughter of the Andersons, and a five-year-old grandson, Jimmy Elliott.

"We had a wonderful weekend," Anderson said. "It was a real vacation for all of us even if it did get off to a bad start."

The Andersons were still having a wonderful time Monday as tragedy stalked them. They left Birmingham for Pennsylvania, Anderson driving his moving van and the family following in the car.

Unknown to them, the picture had changed back in Birmingham. "Peppy" was found to be infected with rabies.

The Andersons stopped late Monday two miles east of Scottsdale on U.S. Highway 78 for a roadside picnic.

Five-year-old Jimmy Elliott the grandson had assured Anderson that he would "spell him" at the wheel of the truck after the picnic.

As the Andersons ate and laughed, radio broadcasts were being placed for officers to look out for them.

Ralph Hardie of Stone Mountain was driving along when he noticed the furniture van and the car. Hardie had heard one of the many broadcasts for the Andersons. He stopped.

"I don't want to alarm you," Hardis said. "But you're the Andersons, aren't you."

Hardie delivered the message. Trooper E. P. Hearn rushed the Andersons to Grady Hospital. Physicians there treated the three children and sent the family on its way, minus its cargo of peril.

He was described as of medium build, with dark brown thinning and graying hair. His eyes are hazel and his complexion medium. He is a white American, and has worked as a carpenter, carpenter's forman, construction superintendent, laborer and railroad fireman.

He has masqueraded as a doctor and a retired military officer and at times has affected a Scottish brogue.

He may wear dentures, has a 1½-inch faint vertical scar in the center of his forehead, scar at the base of his left thumb, a small diagonal scar on the right palm, scars on the knuckles of the first and second fingers of the left hand, and a star shaped tattoo on the instep of his left foot.

The FBI also said Motherwell has used the names Frank Eugene Caventer, Dr. L. L. Motherwell, Capt. Larry Motherwood, Dr. Albert Putney, Bill Ray, Arthur Rivers, Bill Rivers.

The FBI said the search for Motherwell is continued from here to Jacksonville. They added he should be considered dangerous.

Ike Will Waive Protocol, Meet Khrushchev at Airport

(Copyright 1959 by the New York Times Co.)

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower will waive protocol and meet Premier Khrushchev at the airport when the Soviet leader arrives Sept. 15 to visit the United States, it was reported authoritatively Monday.

The report was made after White House Press Secretary Hagerty had expressed annoyance over statements, attributed to State department officials, that protocol would require extending somewhat less than full honors to the Soviet Premier since he is not a chief of state. Hagerty said plans for receiving Khrushchev would be announced by the White House "and only the White House."

The protocol problem is that while the Premier, as head of government, gives the orders in the Kremlin, the titular chief of state is Marshal Klimenti Y. Voroshilov, chairman of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet.

Doctors Set Psychiatry Talks Here

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. (UPI) — A conference will be held in Atlanta Oct. 8 and 9 on the training of general practitioners in psychiatric principles.

The session was approved Monday by the Southern Regional Education Board's Council on Mental Health and Training as it opened a two-day meeting at the Greenbrier.

The council also heard a report on its in-service exchange training program, approved a uniform reporting system on mental illnesses and heard an address by Gov. Cecil H. Underwood of West Virginia.

ATLANTAN SPEAKS

Dr. William Rottersman, Atlanta, Southern Regional Education Board (SREB) mental health consultant, reported on the training of general practitioners in this vital field.

"Today, the non - psychiatric physician is more aware than ever before that in a large number of his patients, he is treating tension, anxiety, depression and their somatic manifestations," Rottersman said.

"These same physicians are aware of their need to recognize and treat personality disturbances as well as to become familiar with the whole new therapeutic area that one encounters in field of psycho - pharmacology where such terms as amine oxidase regulators, serotonin, nor epinephrine and others are becoming familiar words."

Rottersman said that in 1958, some 30 per cent of all prescriptions were for tranquilizers.

'DELICATE ASPECT'

"The most delicate, complex and vital aspect of man, his psyche, is being doctored by physicians sadly deficient in an even rudimentary knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the personality," he said.

Each of the 16 states participating in the SREB's activities will send at least five general practitioners to the October meeting in Atlanta.

There, Rottersmam said, he would present a paper which would picture the various resources in the South for training the non-psychiatrist in psychiatric principles.

3 Hurt, 6 Held In Rock-Roll Melee Here

A policeman and several other persons were injured late Monday during a melee that developed during a rock 'n' roll session at Herndon Stadium, police said.

Negro Patrolman C. E. Mundy was struck over the head with a bottle as he attempted to remove a bottle hurler from a section of the stands occupied by Negroes.

Mundy was treated at Grady Hospital.

At least two other persons also were injured, officers said. Six persons, five of them Negroes, were arrested on disorderly conduct charges.

The rock 'n' roll sessions at the stadium are attended by whites and Negroes, but the disturbance was not interracial, officers said. Police said each program has resulted in several arrests.

Fall Shoes Offer Elegance And New Slimness of Foot

By RAYMONDE ALEXANDER
Constitution Fashion Editor

Changes a-foot for fall are tricky and, if you aren't on your toes, you may find yourself seeing this season's shoes as not too different from last fall's.

It's good because your leftovers can still give you some mileage and yet there's enough newness to distinguish between fashion standing and just standing. You won't have to make a wholesale throw-away as a few seasons past. But you will want to supplement with the more general feeling of greater elegance and greater simplicity in shoes.

Emphasis on the silhouette is the primary importance according to Rube Adler and Stanley Ostroff, president and designer, respectively, of Delman Shoes, who are today in Atlanta to show their new fall collection at a local specialty store.

The new objective in shoe design is to make the foot appear slender without exaggerated length. As a result, the newest shape is a slightly oval toe with a flattened look at the vamp. This last will be shown on both the very high and high-heeled styles and is expected to become the happy medium between the very pointed toe and the old round toe.

MANY VERSIONS

It will come in many versions including a brown suede that has a leaf cutout pattern across the toe and the cutout is filled with brown satin. Another in the flatter, oval toe silhouette is a brown suede pump also. The toe is sparked with golden stones set flatter in the shoe for a new refined look in brilliance.

In this new feeling of new brilliance for day time and evening is also the black suede pump featuring a toe with thin inserts of satin colored cerise, green, blue, yellow and purple. It has a shortening effect on the shoes and gives it new versatility in your wardrobe.

Satin with suede is a favorite combination with this designer for his fall shoes and one of the most unique ways of handling it is seen in a dark brown pump. The suede and satin are woven basket-like all-over the shoe and the contrast in the surfaces of the material is most unusual.

IMPORTANT COLORS

Black, browns (dark, medium to light), gray and blue in that order are the important colors in the collection. However, greens, yellowed, also receive a great deal of attention. In the yellowed green family is the calf pump perforated with various designs over the complete shoe excepting the very toe tip. This indicates a trend you can expect in shoes becoming lighter in look and feeling. Also the feeling of much less shoe, higher and plunging arch, is another way shoes are coming lighter.

The very pointed toe is still very much in the picture, particularly for evening wear. Showing it with the new arch interest in an upward curving rhinestone jewel and satin bow is the black suede pump with high heels.

This fall, perhaps as in no other, the wardrobe of shoes is the key to good costuming. The good little pump will no longer get you by in fashion for around the clock. The right shoe with the right costume at the right time of day stamps the woman of fashion. Attention to wardrobe planning then should be your watchword for fall.

DELIVERY BY HYPNOSIS GAINS IN POPULARITY IN ATLANTA
Patient goes into hypnotic trance before delivery

HAVING A BABY

Mother's Fear Is Greatest Deterrent To Having Fully Normal Childbirth

By JOYCE GEMMILL

All women, during the period marking their first pregnancy are usually beset with some kind of fear—fear regarding the delivery of their baby, fear of pain, fear of losing their figure or fear that they will not have a perfect baby.

Doctors tell us fear is the greatest deterrent to a normal childbirth there is. "Fear can tend to prolong labor and in some instances cause labor to cease temporarily," says one doctor.

For this reason, doctors hasten to assure all mothers-to-be that when the BIG DAY arrives, a very natural procedure takes place. Nature gives the expectant mother plenty of warning of the coming event and, rest assured, your doctor will have alerted you to watch for the first signal.

In all likelihood your doctor will discuss with you the type delivery you prefer.

MENTAL STATE

Regardless of what method of delivery you choose, natural, painless or hypnosis, the big key is your physical and mental state. Medical records have proven that the mother-to-be who keeps physically fit has an easier delivery and a better chance of resuming her normal duties than one who permits herself to become practically bedridden. Here is a brief synopsis of the methods of delivery practiced in Atlanta hospitals.

The old method of Twilight Sleep, which was a combination of morphine and another drug and which you may have heard your mother or grandmother refer to, is no longer in use.

Among the methods used in painless childbirth replacing Twilight Sleep is the Spinal or Saddle Block. This type of anesthesia is injected as a rule into the spine and anesthetizes the nerves from the navel down.

One of the most popular new methods used in painless childbirth begins with an injection of Demoral, a drug that quiets the nerves. This is followed by Trilene, a self-administered drug that is inhaled at will as the patient requires it. As labor progresses into the final stages, an intravenous injection of nembutal is used for the final delivery.

USE WITH CARE

While injections of Sodium Pentothal cause almost instantaneous oblivion and are used by many physicians with great success, one Atlanta obstetrician warns it must be used with the utmost care.

Paraldehyde, also used to some extent by Atlanta doctors and with great success, is taken orally. While some women relate no effects of it whatsoever, others claim it has caused a feeling of nausea and vomiting.

An Atlanta mother says of painless childbirth delivery. "I told my doctor before my baby was born that I just wasn't the brave, starry-eyed mother who wanted to see my baby delivered. After my labor pains started, I requested drugs and sailed through all the anguish of heavy labor and delivery with no discomfort whatsoever. I loved my baby just as much after seeing him when I woke up a few minutes later as I would have seeing him at birth. I admit it. I'm a sissy and thoroughly believe in taking full advantage of modern medical aids."

Gaining favor with some women who cannot take any drugs whatsoever, is the post hypnotic suggestion type of delivery or hypnosis. This method must be decided on early in pregnancy by the mother and requires a physician skilled in hypnosis.

"Delivery by hypnosis," says one doctor who has had favorable results with this method," can only be achieved if the patient can successfully be hypnotized. We have had immense success with post-hypnotic suggestion not only in deliveries but in many surgical cases where the patient could not take anesthetics."

NATURAL CHILDBIRTH

Natural childbirth, which has gained in popularity the past decade has come into its own. Women who fear the effects of drugs on their new-born, those who are susceptible to drugs or who express a desire to see their off-spring born heartily endorse the natural delivery.

One Atlanta mother whose three children were all natural childbirth deliveries says: "I just can't imagine any mother wanting to have her babies delivered any other way. Nothing replaces the thrill of seeing your baby coming into the world and hearing that first cry.

Since this type of delivery is decided upon early in pregnancy, most mothers-to-be join pre-natal classes where special-type exercises and lectures prepare the expectant mother for natural delivery.

An Atlanta doctor who favors the natural delivery provided the mother is normally equipped to experience it, adds "Nature has so equipped the female to bear and produce her young without the aid of drugs that I see no reason why a woman would wish to have a child delivered by any other means."

Tomorrow's feature will relate the actual experience of childbirth, the new parent's reaction and facts about hospitalization.

Numerous Parties Spotlight Late Summer Social Scene

By YOLANDE GWIN

The mailman's bag was bulging with invitations during the weekend, proof that hostesses around town have set their sights on the social horizon.

This evening new members of the Ansley Park Golf Club will gather for cocktails in their honor at the clubhouse on Montgomery Ferry drive.

Invitations to this novel and hospitable gesture were issued by John H. Jones, social chairman for the club, and Mrs. Jones. They will act as official hosts and will receive the guests along with Ed Callaham, club president, and Mrs. Callaham and Dr. Eugene Griffin, vice president, and Mrs. Griffin.

Atlanta's debutante season starting earlier than years past is getting under way with the calendar already full of parties. September will be inaugurated with an elaborate reception to be given on Tuesday Sept. 1, at the Piedmont Driving Club. Invitations to the affair are just out from Mrs. Warren Foster and her sister, Mrs. Asbury B. Greene, who will introduce the former's daughter, Claudia Smaw Foster to society.

The next day, the deb crowd will gather to honor another deb, Mary Elizabeth Norris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Norris. Hostesses will be Mrs. Charles Meriwether, Mrs. Edmund Eastman and Mrs. James Sims who will entertain at the home of the former on Rivers road.

TRADITION SAYS that all brides must wear blue garters. But it was left for Mrs. James Hardy to provide a pair not only for a bride-elect but also several young belles.

Mrs. Hardy made the garters as favors to be given today when her daughter Anne entertains at a luncheon at the Capital City Country Club for bride-elect Catherine Ficklen. Place cards will be nosegays on a frame of pink net which will be miniatures of the center piece.

Catherine's marriage to Temp Davis will take place Sept. 8 at the Trinity Presbyterian Church. Anne will leave soon for the University of Georgia where both her parents attended. Her mother is the former Marjorie O'Kelley and met her husband while both were students at the university.

SPEAKING OF PARTIES, some 40 student nurses got quite a surprise, as well as a lot of merriment when they attended the after-the-performance party given by Bob Clark Jr. as one of the last "flings" of the current season of The Theater Under the Stars which closed Sunday.

Noted for his gay and unusual affairs, Host Clark entertained only the nurses and the group of Red Cross Volunteers who had driven the girls to the show.

Decorations were—as one guest said—"hospitalized." The host had gotten nurses' caps and pressed them into service as covers for flower containers. Refreshments were passed on hospital bed trays and various signs such as "No Visitors", "Oxygen in Use," etc. were posted throughout the home. Another hospital "touch" was a patient all ready for an operation. A dummy swathed in a hospital gown and covered with a sheet was on a table in the sun parlor. Arrayed along side and on an adjoining table were all the surgeon's tools.

CAPT. FRANCIS EDMONDSON, U. S. N. retired, and Mrs. Edmondson left Saturday for Chicago, Ill., where the former will report for two weeks duty at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station.

MRS. H. C. BAGLEY is recuperating from a broken hip at the home of her daughter, Mrs. James Speas on Argonne drive.

TEEN-AGER SUE FERST, daughter of the Robert Fersts and her guest, Pam Waters of Tuxedo, N.C., are up in the clouds today en route to Oklahoma City, Okla., where they will be house party guests of Kelsey Price and Mary Machell Thatch.

The two hostesses—guests will be entertained at both homes—have invited their chums from Camp Green Cove in Tuxedo, N.C., which has just closed.

In addition to Sue and Pam, the other girls who will gather for a final reunion before school days include Sandy Kohlhase of Knoxville, Tenn.; Carolyn Trabue of Nashville, Tenn.; Alice Meriweather and Dee Dee Graham of Birmingham; Jane Lambdin of Jackson, Miss., and Puggy Collins of Columbus, Ga. Upon her return from the house party, Sue will pack up again to leave for the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn.

Another of the Ferst family is also on the go these days. Robin flies to Chicago tomorrow where she will visit her aunt, Mrs. Leonard Bezark.

WILLIAM JOHNSON, son of Dr. and Mrs. McClaren Johnson has been humming "South of the Border, down Mexico way" these last few days. He's just back from such exciting places as Mexico City, Taxco, Cuernavaca, Acapulco, Quadaluipe and Xochimileo.

MAJ. AND MRS. BRUCE DAVIS and their two daughters, Barbara and Cathy spent a few days here this week with Mrs. Davis' brother, Glenn Thorton and Mrs. Thornton at their home in Hapeville. Maj. Davis, a pilot in the U.S. Air Force is being transferred from Dayton, Ohio, to Los Angeles, Calif., and with his family is now en route to the new home.

Rainey, Canfield Vows Said

Mrs. Robert W. Rainey of Eatonton announces the marriage of her daughter, Nan Morgana Rainey of Atlanta, to Dale Kelley Canfield of St. Louis, Mo., formerly of Atlanta and Fayetteville, Ark.

The evening ceremony took place at the First Methodist Church of Eatonton, with Dr. Charles L. Allen and the Rev. Larry Bauman officiating.

The bride, who is the daughter of the late Robert Walker Rainey, was given in marriage by Tom A. Gregory, and her sister, Mrs. Robert L. Ammons of Kingsport, Tenn., was her matron of honor.

Her bridesmaids included the bridegroom's sister, Mrs. James J. Jamieson of Wichita, Kan.; Barbara Foster of Canton, Martha Tucker and Dorothy Fincher of Eatonton.

The bridegroom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dwight R. Canfield, chose his father as his best man. The groomsmen, who also doubled as ushers, were Robert L. Ammons, Jimmy Nelson of Ft. Campbell, Ky.; Gene Gref and William Raines of Augusta, Phil Sexton of Atlanta and Roy Blanton of Albany.

ATLANTAN WORKED IN PUERTO RICO
Leah Among Girl Scout Counselors at Special Camp

Atlanta Teen Took Part In Puerto Rico 'First'

By HARRIETTE WEINSTEIN

An Atlanta teen was among the 12 Girl Scouts from the United States and 12 from South America who took part in a "first" in Puerto Rico this summer.

Leah Johnson, 16-year-old senior at Northside High School, has just returned home after spending five weeks working at the first Girl Scout Camp for the underprivileged children in Puerto Rico and sight-seeing.

"Our first sight of Puerto Rico was with all the Puerto Rican Girl Scouts standing at the plane, chattering away in Spanish," recalled Leah, an excellent Spanish student. "I speak Spanish—but they were going so fast I couldn't understand them. Thank goodness they also spoke English."

The girls were divided into two groups with six from South America and six from the U.S.A. in each group. First one group worked while the other went sightseeing. Then they switched.

WENT SIGHTSEEING

"The first night I stayed with a Puerto Rican Girl Scout and her family. I got acquainted with their coffee — half milk and half coffee—and went sightseeing in old San Juan where I saw the statue of Columbus."

When Leah went to work at the camp, she found many surprises, among them her campers' English.

"You'd expect their English to be halting. But I was amazed to hear them speak fluently—with a Brooklyn accent. Then I found out many had lived in New York for a few years."

Her Spanish quickly became fluent. But sometimes she used "ignorance" to manage her campers.

YOUNGER SISTERS

"When the children would start arguing over who was going to do the various KP jobs, I just pretended I couldn't understand a word. I have a younger sister. And I'd say my campers were just typical young girls."

One of her jobs was to teach swimming, which she had never done in English, much less in Spanish.

"I'd call to one of the girls, 'What's the Spanish word for kick?' or 'How do you say blow bubbles?' and it worked out fine."

Her lack of Southern accent surprised the other girls from the States who'd expected a "super Southern drawl."

"However, I discovered that there were many different Spanish accents among the girls from different countries."

The counselors spent much of their time talking—about their native cities and countries, their music and their movies.

CLASSICAL MUSIC

Leah discovered classical music is much more popular in the South American countries.

'But they like rock and roll, too," she quickly added. "And their Latin American dances, like the cha cha, are much more flexible than we consider them. The Latin American music there is different, too."

In some countries—especially Brazil—the girls were fluent in many languages—Portuguese, English, German, French and Spanish.

In South America, they have their own movies and movie star favorites.

"But," added the Atlantan, "in Puerto Rico the girls see American movies. And they talked about Pat Boone and Elvis Presley."

Pilot Club Sets Picnic

The annual picnic of the Pilot Club of Atlanta will be held at the home of Mrs. Millicent French, president, 1477 North Decatur Rd., NE, on Tuesday, Aug. 25, at 6:30 p.m.

The club action committee, under the direction of Mrs. Opal Jackson, is in charge of the program.

Those participating are Mrs. Evelyn Arnold, Miss Betty Parker, Miss Vera Robinson, Miss Elizabeth Greene and Miss Martha Edge.

Reservations should be made by Monday.

PTA Council To Study Leadership

The elective officers and committee chairmen of the DeKalb County Council of PTA attended school Monday, Aug. 24, at 7:45 p.m. to study the fine points of PTA leadership and procedure.

They will later hold similar schools of instruction in various areas of the county for the local PTA groups.

The council school was held in the Glenwood room of the Decatur Federal Savings and Loan Building, 1807 Candler Rd., near the Candler-Glenwood intersection.

Mrs. C. O. Duncan, president of the DeKalb council, introduced the instructors. They are Mrs. James Gordy, chairman of councils for the Georgia Congress of PTA, and Mrs. Sarah Spano, past council chairman, both of Columbus.

REGULARITY WITHOUT MEDICINES

When constipation is caused by lack of bulk in the diet, there's a safe, common-sense way to deal with it. Forget about harsh laxative medicines. And start eating a wholesome cereal food.

That wholesome food is Kellogg's All-Bran. Millions of middle-aged people have regained the regularity of youth by eating a half-cup of Kellogg's All-Bran once a day. Even a small serving supplies all the good food bulk you need to stay on schedule.

Kellogg's All-Bran is appetizing, too. Try it for 10 days—see if it doesn't restore your regularity.

TO MY ADOPTED CHILD...

"I don't care what the experts say—if I had it to do over again, I'd never tell you that you were adopted. Perhaps the young man you were going to marry wouldn't have walked out when he discovered the truth. And perhaps the cruel facial twitch that took a psychiatrist so long to erase might never have made you suffer. I realize now our love could never shield you from the tactless questions and vicious remarks of others. The current issue of McCall's tells our story. I wanted it that way. If we can save one child a single heartache, your own struggle will not have been in vain. Maybe others like us will speak up once they read September McCall's." Extra! In addition to the regular stunning food section, a special 5-page file of fabulous fried food recipes.

Her Problem Is Problems

DEAR GEORGE:

You know about people who can't read about symptoms of a disease without getting those symptoms? Well, that is the way I am about problems. Everytime I read about a problem, I suddenly realize I have that problem. My problem is all these columnists who write about problems.

—HARRIED.

DEAR HARRIED:

Advice columnists serve a valuable function in our culture. Where else outside the fence at the funny farm can an adviser solve any and all problems which arise? Take you, for instance, and your touching plight. Inasmuch as you are so prone to problems, quite obviously there is only one out for you. Have you thought of becoming an advice columnist? And now, if I may, it's back to the old advice beat. I have here a letter from a lady who says her pet pig has sinus. Identify with that one, if you can. DEAR PIG LOVER: . . .

BUTTER COOKIES

- ¾ cup butter or margarine
- ½ cup granulated sugar
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 6 egg yolks
- ½ tspn. vanilla
- ½ tspn. lemon flavoring
- 1¾ cups sifted all purpose flour
- ¼ tspn. salt
- ½ tspn. baking soda
- 1 tspn. baking powder

Cream butter and sugar until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks and flavorings, beat thoroughly. Add sifted dry ingredients, and mix well. Chill for several hours. Use a teaspoon of dough for each cooky and form into balls. Roll in granulated sugar and place in ungreased cooky sheets. Press down with a fork. Bake at 350 degrees about 8 to 10 minutes or until delicately browned. Makes about 5 dozen.

Miss Prior Is Wed To Mr. Johnson

At a late afternoon ceremony solemnized at the Peachtree Road Methodist Church, Jeannine Prior, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay George Prior, became the bride of Lyman Augustus Johnson Jr., of Atlanta, and Des Moines, Iowa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman A. Johnson Sr., of Atlanta.

Dr. Frank Moorhead officiated at the nuptial service which was followed by a reception held in the church parlors, with the bride's parents as hosts.

Mr. Prior gave his daughter in marriage. She was attended by Mrs. William Linginfelter of Macon as matron of honor, Mrs. Joseph Johnston, Mrs. Robert Wester, Connie Atkinson and Louise Mass as bridesmaids.

The bride's gown of silk organza featured a bodice covered with narrow ruffles. Her illusion veil was held in place by a crown of handmade roses, and she carried a bouquet of orchids, stephanotis and valley lilies.

The bridegroom's father was his best man, and serving as usher-groomsmen were Bartow Morgan, Cody Laird, Lynah Sherrill, Robert Wester, Burt Bridges and Larry Comer.

The bridegroom's sister, Delene Johnson, kept the bride's book, and assisting in entertaining at the reception were Carole Kennedy, Mrs. Lloyd Prior, Mrs. Philip Striet and Rita Garner.

'Handicapped' Diet

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI)—Handicapped children may need different amounts of food than other youngsters of the same age, says Helen Becker, health educator at the University of Nebraska.

If the disability entails the use of a heavy brace, he may need extra food. If the child is deprived of physical activity, he may require less food. The child's doctor or clinic should be consulted about the youngster's dietary needs, Miss Becker said.

Clinkscales, Huddle Vows Said

The Baptist Church of Starr, S.C., formed the setting for the marriage on Saturday evening of Barbara Valeria Clinkscales, daughter of Harold Clinkscales and the late Mrs. Lila H. Clinkscales of that city, to Jack Pearson Huddle of Greenwood, S.C., son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl B. Huddle of Bluefield, W.Va.

Mr. Clinkscales gave his daughter in marriage, and the Rev. Sam Putman was the officiating clergyman.

Melanie Clinkscales was her sister's maid of honor, and a sister-in-law, Mrs. Harold S. Clinkscales of Madison, S.C., was matron of honor.

Bridesmaids were the bridegroom's sister, Dorothy Huddle of Bluefield, W.Va., Mrs. Mayo Lacy of Fort Valley, Mrs. Harold Kelly of Anderson, S.C., and Mrs. Ed Jones of Atlanta.

Emmett I. Davis of Greenwood, S.C., was best man for Mr. Huddle, and Harold S. Clinkscales Jr. of Madison, S.C. Mayo Lacy of Fort Valley, Tillman Williams of Macon, Phillip Floyd of Greenwood, and Roger Budner of Bluefield seated the wedding guests.

Mr. Huddle took his bride on a two-week honeymoon to New York and Canada.

Love 'em? Support Them

The gentleman on the phone told me I could be elected governor if I ran on a platform to fix it up so "them that loves illegitimate children can help support 'em and them that don't love 'em don't have to pay anything." It's a sure-fire, please-all-of-the-people-all-of-the-time program, he assured me, and although the heady notion of being Georgia's first female governor beguiled me for a few minutes I reluctantly gave it up.

The young Ernest Vandivers don't have to worry about moving out of the governor's mansion on my account. Anybody who can solve our problems to the satisfaction of the hearts and pocketbooks of every single voter won't have to settle for governor. The White House awaits him—or her.

But the solution, unfortunately, isn't ever easy. Even in churches where we are all presumably bound together in Christian love, you can get a whingding of an argument over how to spend the freewill offerings. Some think foreign missions are an abomination and some think spending money on a fine church building is playing straight into Satan's hands.

So a little problem like the increase of illegitimacy in our land is sure to founder on the shoals of conflict and confusion.

Fortunately, before some of us were aware it was a problem, sociologists were already at work on it. Numbers of studies have been made and a rather impressive collection of reports and books has been written.

Yesterday I mentioned the report of Raleigh C. Hobson, who did a study in Virginia on the problems relating to children born out of wedlock. He went into the cultural and economic causes, pointing out that the high rate of illegitimacy among Negroes is due in part to a tolerant attitude long prevalent among both whites and Negroes. In fact, he says, less than 100 years ago the American Negro as a slave frequently wasn't allowed to marry but the production of children was nonetheless encouraged. Nowadays life in overcrowded slum dwellings, the lack of opportunity for advancement and low incomes have contributed to low moral standards.

Further, the increase in family breakdown through divorce, desertion and separation has been a factor.

The answers Mr. Hobson suggests may not be the best ones but they will bear examination. He recommends:

1. A stronger paternity law to require the putative father to support his child. 2. A law to allow voluntary sterilization. 3. A "concerted effort to raise the moral standards of the lower social classes" through church, school, civic organizations and the home. 4. Wider dissemination of birth control information. 5. Establishment of a system of counselors, as Fulton County has recently done, to help young unwed mothers "change their pattern of behavior before it is firmly established." 6. Provide funds for additional caseworkers to allow reduced caseloads for those working with Aid to Dependent Children families. 7. More study of the problem through institute research projects. 8. Continue efforts to increase economic opportunities for the lower class of both races so as to reduce the problems of slums, inadequate income, and overcrowded living conditions. 9. More public education "so that the complex nature of the origins of the problem of illegitimacy may be better understood and ill-advised and useless punitive legislation . . . can thereby be avoided."

And while we're considering Mr. Hobson's recommendations I hope we will also look into that myth about how profitable it is to have children on the ADC. In Fulton County the average ADC family is 3.75 children and the average ADC grant is $86. As a mother of three, I'd admire to know how you can keep a roof over their heads and food for their bodies on that sum of money.

A New Idea in Place Mats

Heat-resistant place mats offer a new idea in table settings.

These so-very-practical place mats can be just as decorative as their ordinary counterparts. They may be made of quilted chintz or other quilted washable cotton fabric.

Here are directions for making the place mats: Cut two layers of the quilted fabric in either a rectangular or an oval shape. Place right sides together and stitch three-quarters of the way around. Invert so right sides show and overstitch open end. Add washable braid or tasseled fringe for individuality.

For other place mats, a stiffened buckram that is washable can be used as a heat-resistant backing. You also can make pillow case place mat covers, leaving one end open. The stiffened buckram can be inserted between the two layers of fabric for heat resistance. This way one set of buckram mats may be used interchangeably with different place mats.

Fighting for One's Honor Better Than Baby-Sitting

By JUNE WILSON

"The trouble with men today is that they think the world owes them a Mother!" She was a young Career Girl, a natural blonde. She added, ". . . and I'm too young to be a mother."

In more ways than one she was right. This youthful yearning for mommy does not confine itself to early manhood. In the older man it is even more nauseating. One young woman of our acquaintance confides that not long ago a man on the threshold of 40 called to take her to dinner. He sank into the biggest chair and with a befitting pout said to her in plain, everyday, understandable English: "I'm tired and I WANT TO BE BABIED." We gather that she sent him packing to his playpen . . . and not a minute too soon!

STILL ON FORMULA

We could get psychological about this, but we won't. It's too short a day for the long couch. But there are less obvious ways by which the boy that won't grow up entices the unwary female into motherhood by proxy. There's the little shaver who always leaves it up to the girl as to where they will eat or how to spend the evening. To the unpracticed this first appears to be thoughtful attention to HER wishes. But if it happens three times in a row, it is likely that the little fella is still on formula.

A man, now, would either say nothing about where to have dinner . . . just head there . . . or he would say, "Tonight we dine at Charlie's Chewery. You'll be the only woman there with gloves on, you will feel out of place and the hillbilly music will drive you mad. But the food is wonderful! You are going to love Charlie's!" So what if you don't "love" Charlie's? It might work into a wonderful fight to be made up after. And making up is what adults do. Children sulk, pout, and tell their mammas on you.

Another working girl assures the world that she'd rather Fight For Her Honor any time than cope with a child. For she explains, "There are ways to handle the would-be wolf, but I would be a heel to strike a child."

MISUNDERSTOOD

We do not want to be misunderstood. Mothers are wonderful, and fully 50 per cent responsible for our being here. But the function of Mother, according to wise and wonderful Dorothy Canfield Fisher, is not a person to lean on, but one to make leaning unnecessary. If an otherwise grown man must ever lean there is a world populated with many women of keen maternal cravings, and they are sturdy as the oak.

They will feed him, and baby him, pick up his clothes and follow him into every childish folly with a patient and loving heart. The two richly deserve each other.

FEMININE NEED

Do not confuse all this with the feminine need to somewhat "spoil" a man. All men can stand a little spoiling. This is, after all, only love in fine print. But . . . and here is a trade secret . . . it is the masculine and the self-reliant man who lures her in this way. Not even a self-respecting vine twines itself about a sapling!

The normal and healthy Career Girl sums it all up very nicely when she says, "A man who is actually looking for a mother is probably also afraid of the dark. And this, (the gleam is unmistakable), will never do!"

Conferees Agree On 3 Labor Issues

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate-House conferees hammered out agreements Monday on three disputed points in the labor control bill. But they remained at odds on some of the most controversial issues.

In a daylong session behind closed doors, the conferees accepted a Senate provision which would give replaced strikers the right to vote in a bargaining election.

This would wipe out a section of the Taft-Hartley law which denies this right. ritics have described this denial as union-busting.

However, the conferees put a nine-month limitation on the right. The Senate bill stipulated no such deadline.

The House bill did not have a comparable provision.

The conferees rejected another important Senate provision setting up a system of pre-hearing elections in collctive bargaining cases.

This was designed to prevent stalling tactics and use of time-consuming technicalities to prevent a decision.

Also killed by the conferees was a Senate provision that would have excluded service assistants in the telephone industry from the term supejvisor and thus made them eligible for union membership. This was not in the ouse bill.

One of the toughest nuts to be cracked, if a compromise is to take shape, is over the question of how to deal with "no-man's land cases"—labor disputes falling between federal and state jurisdiction.

Hartsfield Has A Namesake in Zoo's 'Willie'

"Willie B." lives at Grant Park.

"Willie B." is a baby gorilla, bought by the city in June for $4,500. He will make his debut around Sept. 1 when the $500,000 monkey house is opened to visitors.

The gorilla was named by zoo attendants, and the mayor of Atlanta—William B. Hartsfield—apparently doesn't mind.

"If that's what they call him, I'm game," the mayor said.

After making a recent inspection tour of the monkey house, Hartsfield turned to a zookeeper and said: "Be sure and take good care of Willie B.' "

Airport Motel Wins Test

Preliminary plans for a $2.5 million 150-room motel at the Atlanta Airport were approved Monday by the aldermanic board's aviation committee.

Julius Epstein of Chicago, presented the plans in accordance with an agreement with the city, Alderman Jesse Draper, committee chairman, said.

Under the program as outlined the facility could be enlarged to meet future demands. It will feature a water moat and a water tower and fountain.

A four-story section will provide facilities for an auditorium for conventions, a lobby, a dining area and other facilities.

Flier Didn't Have To Smuggle Family

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP)—The wife and tiny son of a U.S. airman did not have to stow away on an Air Force plane, an Air Force spokesman said Monday.

The German-born wife of 2/C William R. Arnett and his 18-month-old son could have traveled as normal passengers had they been patient, the spokesman said.

Arnett was detailed in the Azores last week after he smuggled his wife and baby aboard a plane in a box. The spokesman said the airman probably will have to face a court martial for his impatience.

His wife, Gerda, and little Billy Ray were returned to Rhein-Main base here after they were found. They were discovered in the box during an Azores stopover when the baby was heard crying.

The spokesman said Arnett's rank did not entitle him to free transportation of his family by Military Air Transport. His family would, however, have had the chance to travel to the United States if space became available on a plane.

This, he said, was a matter of waiting for a few weeks.

Arnett was returning to his station at Donaldson Air Force Base, Greenville, S.C., after temporary duty in Germany when he made his unsuccessful attempt to smuggle his family home.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South

Opening lead: Five of ♠.

East was the victim of a genuine Houdini act in today's hand.

The final contract of four hearts was sound enough, though some partnerships would have reached three no trump.

West opened the five of spades, and East cashed two tricks in that suit. At this point he became remorseful over his failure to double, for with the jack of hearts in dummy it appeared physically impossible to prevent his winning two trump tricks. It all seemed like a mirage to East when declarer so skillfully managed his cards as to hold the defense to only one trick in hearts.

At trick three East exited with the ten of diamonds. Declarer grabbed the ace and then led to the king of hearts and received the jarring news that East had what appeared in print to be two sure trump tricks. With a little reflection declarer reached the conclusion that his cause was not hopeless and that the hand could be won if East had to follow to four rounds of clubs, a remote holding to be sure.

He, therefore, ran the club suit and was gratified to learn that East had four clubs. Declarer discarded his two small diamonds and then ruffed a diamond as East followed. When the ten of spades was now led from the closed hand and a discard made from the dummy, East was down to nothing but hearts and ruffed in with the seven. In this position, East holding Q-9-8 of hearts was burdened with the lead and could not prevent declarer from taking the balance, because the forced lead of the eight permitted dummy to win with the jack.

HEALTH and HAPPINESS

By DR. SARA JORDAN

Degenerative Arthritis Common

In degenerative arthritis the degeneration actually takes place in the cartilage of the joint, and there is excessive development of the bone, medically called hypertrophy.

This condition is also called osteoarthritis or hypertrophic arthritis and, because it occurs mostly as we grow older, secescent arthritis. It is a cronic condition and the -itis part of the designation is incorrect because it is not inflammatory.

The joints which have the burden of greatest weight are the ones which usually most involved.

In some cases there is an aching, often there is stiffness, especially in the morning on arising. This kind of aching passes off after one moves about in contrast to the pain of rheumatoid arthritis, which increases with motion.

In degenerative arthritis there is no cure, but various measures relieve aching and whatever disability results from the enlargement of the bony structure of the joints.

The care of people with degenerative arthritis is entirely one of good management. If the patient is obese, weight should be reduced to lessen the burden carried on the joints. Enough rest and correct exercises are necessary to allow the attached muscles to compensate to some degree for the impaired joints. Many a badly deformed spine would be constantly painful and disabling if the muscles were not in good condition from golf or swimming.

The really important thing to remember when your doctor says you have degenerative arthritis is that you are just like most of your contemporaries. Some of your joints may be enlarged or even deformed, but in most cases life can go on, if not merrily, at least smoothly.

U.N. Children's Fund To Spend 17 Million

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The U.N. children's found will spend $17,086,210 on 86 projects for helping mothers and children in 54 countries if its executive board approves. A program recommending that action has been put forward by Maurice Pate, executive director of the fund. The board meets here Sept. 1-10 to act on the recommendations.

RHYME A DAY

By OLLIE REEVES

"Less than one one-millionth of our thinking power is ever put to use."—Article quote.

Few of us think; we think we do . . . But if we're truthful we admit . . . Our thoughts have come from people who . . . Themselves received the benefit . . . Of all the fragmentary lore . . . And wisdom painfully obtained . . . By multitudes who lived before . . . And passed along the knowledge gained.

You smoke a certain cigarette . . . The merchant hands you from his shelf . . . You may enjoy it, but I'll bet . . . You didn't make the choice yourself . . . And in the happy atmosphere . . . Of entertaining jovial friends . . . You serve a certain brand of beer . . . The advertiser recommends.

You wear the clothes like others wear . . . You eat the kind of foods they eat . . . And, in the summertime, you bare . . . Your carcass to the summer heat . . . Because you heard a coat of tan . . . Is most attractive to a maid . . . When, if you were a thinking man . . . You'd go somewhere and find a shade.

And now before we say good-night . . . And seek the comfort of our bed . . . The more I think of what I write . . . The less I think of what I've said.

E. German Refugees Bring Along Cows

KASSEL, Germany (AP) — Two farmers from Communist East Germany brought all their cattle along when they fled to West Germany.

Fearing the collectivization of his farm, a 55-year-old farmer came across Monday with his wife and two children. He drove a herd of 14 cows through a gap he had cut in the barbed wire fence that marks the border. Another farmer brought along seven cows.

THIS MAN } { KNOWS HOW TO STOP YOUR THINNING HAIR

Q. Does falling hair cause baldness?
A. It is natural for hair to reach mature length and then fall out. Baldness starts when local scalp ills keep your scalp from replacing hair as fast as it falls out.

Q. How can thinning hair be stopped?
A. The Thomas' first determine which of the common 14 local causes of hair loss are attacking your scalp. They then administer a specific treatment to overcome your scalp ills. Soon your dandruff disappears, hair fall is checked, and hair starts to grow again as Nature intends it should.

Q. Are the treatments medically approved?
A. A physician checks your health history and Thomas treatments are then administered only with his medical approval.

Q. What can Thomas do for ME?
A. Come to the Thomas office today for free consultation with the Thomas expert. Let him show you how the 37-year proved Thomas method works—how it can help you to get rid of itchy dandruff, stop thinning hair, and promote hair growth. No obligation—and no appointment is needed.

Mower Par Excellence Was on Its Last Legs

Meanest man story:

A fellow here in Atlanta got a phone call from his brother-in-law. The brother-in-law said: "I heard your lawn mower quit, and I've got one that I'll sell you for eight dollars."

"It must be on its last legs!"

"Well, maybe it is, but I'll guarantee you don't have to push it. It is self starting and will really work, and I'll guarantee that it will run for years."

First fellow decided that for eight dollars he couldn't lose. "Send it over and let me look at it," he said.

"Nope. You send me the eight dollars and I'll deliver it. That's the only way I'll trade," the brother-in-law (acting very brother-in-lawish) said.

First fellow sent the eight dollars. Next day, up drove brother-in-law to deliver the lawn mower. It was everything he said it was. It was a goat.

Local Plans for Civil War Centennial

Up in north Fulton County the mayors have gotten together and appointed a policy and steering committee with these members: Walter Eves, chairman, Roswell; William Crowe, vice chairman, Roswell; Earl Smith, liaison, Sandy Springs; Archie Lindsey, Alpharetta; Quimby Wills, Alpharetta; Melvin Coalson, Alpharetta; Vincent Rabern, Roswell; Johnny Vickers, Sandy Springs, and Cephas S. Spruill, Dunwoody.

Earl Smith said that he had the rosters of four companies from the area which fought in the War Between the States, and that the folks from Old Milton would reactivate the companies for the commemoration.

The first real organizational meeting will be Tuesday night at Sun Valley Park. It is a citizens meeting and everyone is welcome. Bill Corley, of the State Chamber of Commerce, will speak. In the offing are a businessman's meeting and a dinner dance.

Then down in Fitzgerald, Mayor Paul Ward and Ben Hill County Commission Chairman J. R. Kimball have appointed a 23-member commission to promote observance of the historical event. Spadework for the commission was done by Ben Hill Representative A. B. C. Dominy Jr., County Commissioners Jack Massee and Billy Snowden, and Chamber of Commerce Secretary Malcolm Reese.

Fitzgerald, which was founded after the Civil War by veterans of both sides of the bloody contest, is a "natural" for the observance. Fitzgerald's history alone is enough to attract national attention to this first effort made by soldiers of the Civil War to solve their differences and live in harmony with one another.

You'll be hearing a lot about Fitzgerald during the next few years.

Daily Guide—This is the kind of day that one ought to be able to drift through as lightly as possible. At least don't get all steamed up and try to rush around, as you probably will not accomplish any more than if you took time to store up some energy to put into projects later, when the effort will count for more. One of the forgotten arts today is "just sittin' and thinkin'."

Leos are still voicing their ideas, or should be, and this trend grows until by Friday they can either make news or receive surprising news, take unexpected trips or make changes. Virgoans also should be more active than usual, asserting themselves, making decisions. Geminians, Pisceans and Sagittarians needs to avoid friction, as they can be stirred up by others.

Happy birthday, Virgo! This should prove a pleasant social time for you, with opportunities to express your personality and talents through neighborhood contacts. You have a chance now to take direct action, so, if you have planned some project, go ahead with it. You may be more aggressive and ambitious now. Older friends will sustain you this year, then next year loved ones can enter to brighten the picture. It will be a good time for romance for those eligible. At present entertain in your home or improve it. Next month watch spending. Avoid emotional complications in everyday matters in November.

Tell-Tale Patrol Car Fittings To Be Stripped in Crackdown

The State Patrol is going to strip its cars of distinguishing features that make them stand out from other cars, in an all-out crackdown on highway speed law violators.

Lt. Col. H. L. Conner, deputy director of the Department of Public Safety said cars of various colors—minus the tell-tale spotlights—will be checked out to patrolmen to give the officers a better chance in the battle against speedsters.

The new order was issued after the state toll for the past weekend reached a grim dozen.

A fatal accident near Rome late Sunday brought the Georgia weekend death toll to 12. In addition, a Columbus construction worker died Saturday in a Virginia collision.

Robert Alex Ford, a 26-year-old Negro of Rte. 3, Rome, was killed in the crash of his car into a bridge 10 miles west of Rome, officers said.

Arthur Lee Shelley, 27, of Columbus died near Richmond, Va., the victim of an auto collision on the Richmond - Petersburg turnpike. Virginia State Police said Shelley's car shot out of control and rammed a telephone pole.

Col. Conner said the uniform gray-colored Fords now used by Georgia troopers are "a dead giveaway" to eagle-eyed speeders who take full advantage of their rear-view mirrors.

"A speeder looks in his mirror and spots a gray car in the distance," he said. "He immediately slows down thinking it's one of our patrol vehicles."

He said the department is also "going to eliminate spotlights on the fenders of our cars."

"These lights have been a dead giveaway, too.

"Besides, we'll save $26 per light."

The cars will continue to be marked on both sides and the back, Col. Conner said.

Atlantan Injured in Rail Wreck

TOLEDO, Ohio — Eleven persons, one of them an Atlanta woman, were injured when seven cars of a nine-car Baltimore & Ohio passenger train derailed near here.

Injured in the wreck at a crossing in suburban Perrysburg was Mrs. Reba Smith, 50, whose address was listed as 184 Florida Ave., SW, Atlanta. Hospital authorities said no one was injured seriously.

According to reports, Mrs. Smith was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, Toledo, for treatment.

Funeral services for George H. Gaffney, 52, of 443 Allison Dr., NE, who died Sunday in a private hospital, will be at 9 a.m. Tuesday at the Cathedral of the Incarnation at Nashville, Tenn. Burial will be in Woodlawn Cemetery there.

THOMAS SMITH KEELER
Funeral services for Atlanta Policeman Thomas Smith Keeler, 57, of 216 E. Cleveland Ave., East Point, who was killed Sunday in an auto wreck near Winder, will be at 4:30 p.m. Tuesday at Carmichael's Chapel. Dr. Paul Van Gorder and the Rev. W. N. Stephens will officiate. Burial will be in Hillcrest Cemetery.

MISS NAN B. CROMPTON
Funeral services for Miss Nan B. Crompton, 47, of 936 Mathew St., SW, who was killed Sunday in an auto wreck near Winder, will be at 1 p.m. Tuesday at Carmichael's Chapel. The Rev. A. C. Peacock and the Rev. Charlie King will officiate. Burial will be in Westview Cemetery.

Mrs. Rosa Knight, 85, Dies; Widow of a State Historian

Mrs. Rosa Talbot Knight, 85, widow of a state of Georgia historian, died Monday at her home at Safety Harbor, Fla.

Her husband was Dr. Lucien Lamar Knight, who died in 1934. Dr. Knight also was an author of several works of history.

Mrs. Knight was born in Washington, Ga., and reared in Eatonton. She was the daughter of the late Col. Matthew and Mary Elizabeth Reid Talbot. Relatives said Mrs. Knight also was a great-niece of Matthew Talbot, who was governor of Georgia for a short period during the early 1800s and was a delegate to the Constitutional Convention in Philadelphia in 1789.

During most of the years of her married life, Mrs. Knight lived in Atlanta.

Graveside services will be Friday afternoon in Frederica Cemetery on St. Simons Island.

There are no known immediate survivors.

Never Suffer Needlessly From Aches And Pains

SALISBURY — Gilbert M. Cramer, pharmaceutical chemist specializing in pain relievers, says that most people suffer needlessly from headaches and acute or minor pains of arthritis and rheumatism.

G. M. Cramer

Synergistic action is needed for really effective, faster, more complete relief of pain according to Cramer.

"That's the medical term for the combined action of several pain-relieving ingredients," he explained. "Combined synergistic action gives you more complete relief than any single ingredient possibly could, and total pain-relieving effect greater than that of all the separate ingredients if they were not combined."

Chemist Cramer supervises manufacture of the famous Stanback Headache Powders, which combine several best-known pain-relieving ingredients in one easy-to-take dose. Only Stanback gives you its more effective synergistic action and special combination of ingredients. It has earned the famous Good Housekeeping Seal.

"Don't suffer needlessly," Chemist Cramer advises. "Remember Stanback Headache Powders and forget your pains. Snap back with Stanback!"

FBI Probes Dynamitings In Catoosa

RINGGOLD (AP)—The FBI has questioned several persons in the investigation of dynamitings, apparently designed to drive Negroes out of Catoosa County, Sheriff J. D. Stewart said Monday.

Friday night, dynamite damaged the homes of Robert Lee Davis, 41, a Negro, and Ralph Greeson, a white farmer. Both families live near Tunnel Hill.

Stewart said the dynamiters apparently had the mistaken belief that Davis' home was owned by Greeson.

The sheriff said that since the dynamiting, Davis, his wife and 15-year-old stepdaughter have moved to the Whitfield County farm of Tyson Griffin Jr., Davis' employer.

Dynamite was thrown into the front yard of the Summerfield Young home near Boyton the night of Aug. 6.

'Lady in Black' Fails to Attend Valentino Rites

HOLYWOOD (UPI) — About 50 persons turned out Monday for memorial services marking the 33rd anniversary of the death of silent screen idol Rudolph Valentino.

Missing once againf rom the turnout was the mysterious "lady in black," who for 28 years stole quietly to Valentino's crypt with a bouquet of red roses on the anniversary before quitting her annual pilgrimage several years ago. Her first pilgrimage started a fad which resulted in as many as a dozen "ladies in black, visiting the crypt at each service.

Dublin's 'Missing' Man Is Forgiven---Almost

DUBLIN (AP) — Forgiven for everything except what his playing dead cost the county, L. E. Pettis was released from the Laurens County jail Monday afternoon, a free man.

The 35-year-old Asheboro, N.C., machinery salesman was freed by Superior Court Judge R. I. Stephens after his wife would make no charges and his brother-in-law, Harold Edwards, had dropped abandonment charges against him.

Pettis was required only to pay costs of $368, which included the expense of returning him from Texas.

He disappeared on an Oconee River fishing trip June 6 while the family was visiting relatives of his wife, the former Grace Edwards of Dublin.

But the missing father of four children was arrested last week at the home of his mother and brother at Irving, Tex., near Dallas.

Returned here on an abandonment warrant sworn out by his brother-in-law, Pettis had a tearful reunion with his wife in the Laurens County jail Sunday.

"It looked to me like they were on the way to another honeymoon," said Sheriff Carlus Gay. The sheriff quoted Pettis as saying he faked death "to get away gret for his act.

Neither Pettis nor his wife had any comment after he was released.

The salesman was described by Irving Police Chief C. J. Wirasnik as suffering from a "near nervous breakdown." Pettis himself complained of "My physical condition."

Alias Joe Hardy

It was a lazy Monday afternoon in Detroit and Harmon Killebrew had decided on a quick nap when the telephone rang. He answered pleasantly enough and agreed to a long-distance interview. The life of Harmon Killebrew has been filled with many such question-and-answer periods lately.

The price of success includes irritating obligations such as being awakened from afternoon naps, fighting mobs of autograph hounds and bending to the many moods of the public. Some who have climbed the steps find the altitude stifling; others see no change and go on being themselves.

Al Thomy

Success has not changed Harmon Killebrew mainly because he has not become impressed with success or Killebrew.

Memory, he finds, is short. He has only to turn back the pages of time one year to revive another hotel room, another city and no telephone calls from those requesting interviews. At that time he had not hit 37 home runs for the Washington Senators nor had he chatted with Vice President Nixon on the steps of the dugout.

"Washington sent me down to Indianapolis for a month last year," said the soft-spoken slugger. "I didn't do too well there and went on to Chattanooga of the Southern Assn. Yes, you might say I was discouraged. Anyone would be after such a demotion."

The Senators decided to gamble on Killebrew this year and underscored their confidence by selling old-line third baseman Eddie Yost to Detroit. The way was open for Harmon. He stepped in.

Few have moved in with a bigger splash. He hit a home run in the very first game and has subsided only briefly since that momentous afternoon. At 23 he stands to become the youngest American League home run champion since Joe DiMaggio wore the crown as a 22-year-old.

—Could Be Pitched To . . . At Chattanooga

When he hit 29 home runs in the Southern Assn. of 1957, word was out that Killebrew could be pitched to. Maybe what they meant was that he could be pitched to in the Chattanooga park.

Harmon was asked to explain why he could hit only 29 home runs in the Southern as against 37 to date in the big leagues.

"It's simple. Have you ever seen that Chattanooga left-field fence, way out yonder? Only eight home runs were hit over it the two years I was there and I had five of them. The other three—I believe—were hit by Sammy Meeks, Ken Hunt and Dick DiTusa.

"Everybody has a favorite park. Chattanooga wasn't mine. In the American League I personally prefer our own park at Washington (350 feet down the left field line) and Briggs Stadium at Detroit (335)."

Those who claimed Killebrew could be worked over at the plate evidently forgot to tell a couple of pretty fair country pitchers, lefty Herb Score of Cleveland and Jim Bunning of Detroit. Score has given up four of Harmon's home runs and Bunning has contributed three.

"One really tough pitcher for me is that Early Wynn at Chicago," postscripted Killebrew. "He works you over good."

Always present in the life of every major league slugger is the ghost of Babe Ruth, for no matter what his feelings are on the number of home runs he might hit, the man who goes for distance is always compared with the Babe and slide rules compute his chances of equalling Ruth's record 60.

Killebrew is no exception. In his modest manner, though, Harmon diverts attention from himself.

"In another park other than Yankee Stadium I believe Mickey Mantle would have a chance of hitting 60," he said. "Another who could do it is Rocky Colavito of Cleveland. It is not too far-fetched to say it could be done."

—Nominates Roomie Allison as ROTY

As for young Harmon, the pride of Payette, Idaho, he would "settle for 45 this season and be happy about it."

His roommate walked into the room and Killebrew was moved to comment on Bob Allison, an outfielder who, like Harmon, made his way to the big leagues by way of Chattanooga. And like Killebrew, Allison was no spectacular with the Lookouts.

"I don't see how Bob can miss being the rookie of the year in the league," said Harmon. "He fields well, runs well, hits well and just does everything well. Right now he has 28 home runs. He's a cinch."

Before going back to his nap, the articulate assassin of baseballs allowed as how he thought the Chicago White Sox would win the pennant on defense and pitching; the Yankees are "really better than they have shown," and the Senators would have done much better had their key man, Roy Seivers, been healthy all season.

In conclusion, Harmon agreed teammates have a way of keeping a man level-headed.

"We were coming back on the train from New York, where I did not have a good series," he chuckled. "One guy looked at me and said he understood we had Joe Hardy (the rejuvenated Washington slugger in the play Damn Yankees) aboard.

"Another said, 'Joe Hardy? He looks more like Andy Hardy to me.' "

After this humorous note, Killebrew was permitted to take leave . . . and dream of No. 38.

Aparicio, Lown Team To Humble Yanks, 4-2

Chisox Go Ahead by 2

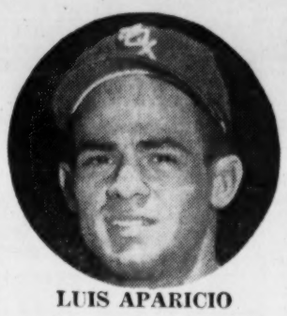
CHICAGO (AP)—Luis Aparicio's daredevil antics on the base paths and clutch relief pitching by Turk Lown helped the Chicago White Sox carve a 4-2 victory over the New York Yankees Monday.

The triumph enabled the Sox to boost their American League lead over idle Cleveland to two games.

Lown pulled starter Ray Moore out of a jam in the sixth inning and then blanked the New Yorkers the rest of the way while Jim Landis drove in two runs on a pair of singles and scored another run.

But it was Aparicio who had the crowd of 21,923 cheering and roaring in the seventh inning when he led off with a walk, stole second, stole third and scored on Landis' infield hit. The two thefts gave Aparacio a major league total of 42 out of 52 attempts.

The victory also gave the Sox a 12-3 edge over New York and assured Chicago of its first season series triumph over the Yankees in 34 years.



LUIS APARICIO
Look Out On the Bases

Moore, who was credited with his third victory against six losses, had a 3-1 lead going into the sixth when he became wild. With one out, he walked Tony Kubek and Mickey Mantle and after Yogi Berra fouled out, Elston Howard beat out an infield hit to load the bases. Hector Lopez walked to force in a run. Lown came in and made pinch batter Norm Siebern fly out to end the inning.

Chicago Gets Series Verdict

The Yankees managed to get their first two men up on base in the seventh and eighth innings but Lown settled down in each case and ended both innings with a strikeout. He allowed three of New York's six singles and struck out Mantle to end the game.

Chicago took a 1-0 lead in the first on a walk and singles by Billy Goodman and Norm Cash. But the Yankees tied it in the third on Cletus Boyer's single, a sacrifice bunt, an error and a sacrifice fly by Bobby Richardson.

Aparicio opened the third inning with a pop fly which fell for a double when Boyer lost it in the sun and scored on Landis' single. Another Chicago run scored in the fifth when Landis singled with two out and romped home on a double by Sherm Lollar.

Don Larsen, first of four Yankee pitchers, took his seventh defeat in 13 decisions.

The game was a replay of the rain-postponed 4-4 tie in six innings July 29. The White Sox first rescheduled the game for Monday night, but under protest by the Yankee players and rulings by American League President Joe Cronin and Commissioner Ford Frick it was played in the afternoon.

No Alarm Over Pros: Jordan

Auburn Coach Hits Rules

By AL THOMY

Auburn head coach Shug Jordan Monday told the Buckhead Lions Club he saw "no reason to be alarmed about professional football invading the South" and detracting from the college game.

Speaking to the group at the Piedmont Driving Club, Jordan charged the colleges were their "own worst enemies" with "silly rules and regulations."

He cited regulations against (1) paying an athlete's transportation for a visit to a college, (2) approaching a high school athlete before his senior year and (3) the tryout system "which enables unknowns and unpublicized boys to try out for a team."

As for the pros, Jordan said they have caused no damage to the collegians in any section of the country.

"They didn't hurt the Pacific Coast," he said. "The PCC hurt itself with its unrealistic rules and regulations. They didn't hurt the Chicago area. Dr. (Robert) Hutchins eliminated football at the University of Chicago.

"Pro football was born in the Big Ten area, yet George Halas and the Chicago Bears haven't NASHVILLE, Tenn., (AP)—Further developments in the Southern Association gambling probe were hinted Monday as baseball officials began gathering here for a mystery meeting Tuesday.

Emphasize Prep Football, Dodd Tells Rotary Club

Butts Pinpoints First Three As Big Three For His Bulldogs

Georgia Tech football coach Bobby Dodd called for more emphasis on high school football in Georgia, and Georgia coach Wally Butts called for solid efforts from his Bulldogs in their first three 1959 games.

These were the highlights of the rival coaches' annual visit with the Atlanta Rotary Club Monday at the Dinkler Plaza Hotel.

"We are faced with a situation here in Georgia," Dodd said. "The competition for outstanding high school stars is greater than ever and while Georgia high schools produce some good backs and tough competitors, they don't have the linemen of the size and agility demanded by the colleges.

"So necessarily Georgia schools must look to other states for enough boys. The answer? Why, it's more emphasis on high school football in Georgia. Increase the pay of the coaches, and take the limit off the time of spring practice. These are two features which make football in Mississippi—a high school football hotbed—so outstanding."

Butts pinpointed the first three games, Alabama and Vanderbilt in Athens and South Carolina at Columbia, as the key to Georgia's season.

"Alabama, of course," he said, "is a traditional rival for us and Bear Bryant has as fine a defensive club as you'll find, Vandy has one of the best backfields around, and South Carolina has the best line material.

"Our team will have experience and toughness . . . we know that. But it won't get much aid from last season's freshman team, which was not very good."

On the conference as a whole, Butts had this to say:

"Louisiana State and Auburn have to be the teams to beat, and they both could very well go through undefeated."

He pointed at Dodd: "Coach Dodd will do the best coaching job in the SEC if Tech finishes as good as fourth, which some people pick 'em to do. I say this because Tech has one of the toughest schedules."

Briefly, here are other items touched on by Butts and Dodd:

Dodd: "I wish the fans would let us field a team to entertain instead of just to win. The fans will see no wide-open football until they forget the won-and-lost record and let the boys play for fun.

"I've been asked why we don't allow pro football teams to play a game for charity on Grant Field. Well, I have no yes-and-no power on this matter."

Butts: "We're not worried about the loss of Dave Lloyd. We tried all spring to get a hole big enough for Lloyd to get through."

Friend Allows 12 Hits In Posting Seventh Win

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Rocky Nelson homered twice Monday night, leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 6-0 victory over the first-place San Francisco Giants.

Pirate starter Bob Friend scattered 12 hits, all singles in picking up his seventh victory of the year compared to 15 defeats. He walked only one and struck out eight.

Bob Friend

Nelson socked a two-run homer in the third and rapped a solo homer in the seventh. The homers were his fourth and fifth of the season.

The Pirates collected 13 hits off four Giant pitchers with shortstop Dick Groat belting a triple and two singles.

Friend ran into trouble in the ninth as the Giants loaded the bases with two outs. But Friend struck out Willie McCovey to end the game.

Giant starter Sam Jones pitched three innings, gave up eight hits and was charged with the loss, his 12th compared to 16 victories.

The Pirates have been hard on pennant contenders during their current home stand. They beat the Milwaukee Braves three out of four and took the same number from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The Crackers' Leo Cristante took a 2-1 win over Ron Mrozinski in the rain temporarily interrupted second game. Bob Talbot's first of two singles, stolen base, wild pitch, two walks and a hit batsman accounted for the two tallies in the second inning.

TRAIL LONG, TIME SHORT

Chatz and Shaffer Confer with Atlantans

Chicago attorney Bob Chatz and Jack Shaffer Monday returned to Atlanta on a mission they hope will ultimately bring major league baseball to the city.

Representing a group of Chicago investors who have filed application with the new Continental League, Chatz and Shaffer plan to meet with "interested Atlanta parties" on Tuesday to discuss adding local impetus to the drive.

Last week the Chicago group, upon appearance before Continental president Branch Rickey and league founder Bill Shea of New York, was instructed to "find the right people of means in Atlanta for support" before further talks with officials of the league.

Rickey and Shea vetoed absentee ownership of the Atlanta franchise.

"We were prepared to put up 100 per cent Chicago money," said Chatz, "but Rickey, who incidentally likes the idea of having Atlanta in the league, ruled that 50 per cent of it must come from Atlantans."

Bob Chatz

Jack Shaffer

League regulations ask 1½-million on hand by the operating club, with another million in reserve. Thus $750,000 of the investment must come from local sources.

"We are to talk with several parties on Thursday," said Shaffer. "We are not at liberty to divulge their names at this time."

Chatz said the two hope to make the necessary contacts during their current visit and return after Labor Day for further discussions. At that time, he said, Rickey and Shea will be invited to attend the meeting here.

Rickey set the last of September as deadline for action on the Atlanta front.

"It has to be a joint effort," said Shaffer. "We want Atlantans to take the lead in bringing baseball here."

—THOMY.

He added the local group must be composed of six or eight people.

"We believe that Atlanta can do as well as Milwaukee in a major league," said Chatz. "Last year baseball brought $14,000,000 —exclusive of baseball money— into Milwaukee businesses."

Ingo's Fight Off Till '60

GOTEBORG, Sweden (AP) — The American delegation, headed by Jack Dempsey, expressed confidence Monday night that heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson will sign a contract Tuesday for a return bout with Floyd Patterson — but emphasized that no site or date had been determined.

The six-man group held an oft-interrupted, day - long series of talks with Johansson and his adviser, Edwin Ahlquist.

Ahlquist said the new contract takes into consideration all demands made by the champion for a clear picture of the distribution of the incomes of the return match.

Dempsey, promotional director of Rosensohn Enterprises Inc., said Johansson's signature would have been obtained Monday but for the fact that Ingemar had to go to the Swedish industrial town of Boras to attend an Aero Club meeting.

Dempsey, who is expected to promote the return match, said the bout has been postponed until early next year, but no definite date has been set.

NO SIGHT'S NEEDED FOR SEEING THESE FISHING MEMORIES

By CHARLES ELLIOTT
Constitution Outdoor Columnist

Every guy (and gal) must eventually come to that portion of his (or her) mundane existence when some part of the old flesh and blood and bone machine begins to rebel at the misuse it has had over many years.

Charlie Elliott

I wrote that line to cheer myself up when a pair of my component parts suddenly staggered under the abuse they've had for more seasons than I care to admit. I really didn't mind my eyes going out. What I minded was when Drs. Morgan Raiford and Harrison Reeves teamed up and gave me an ultimatum of no more close eye work for a few days, ruling out such things as agate, pica, or any printed matter done up in less than 18-point type.

Now, at my age, what does a guy do around the house when he can't write, or even read? Talking is a pretty good way to pass the time, but there's a small problem of finding someone to listen, or you might catch yourself shadow-boxing with nouns and verbs. So I wandered aimlessly for a while, poking around into odd corners of the house, before the bright idea struck me that I might straighten out my tackle box. Plugs are, of course, bigger even than headline letters, and I figured I should be able to see enough to rearrange my kit by placing carelessly thrown lures back into their proper trays, and assembling the gadgets like pliers, thermometer and jars of pork rind where I might find them without the usual major excavation.

One fact I learned in a hurry. A guy with one eye (this guy, anyway) can't judge distance. Every plug for which I reached snapped at my fingers like an irritated turtle, and before I had the lures spread out on surrounding chairs for reassignment to the correct trays, my hands looked like I'd been in a slapping contest with a cat. But I didn't dare leave the hooks scattered on the chairs as possible pins for somebody's cushion. I was placing the bits of metal, wood and plastic where they belonged, when I suddenly began to recall special little incidents about this one and that one.

I recalled the Dardevle, without hooks, that I had dropped into the box a couple of weeks before. Something big had tied into that bit of bright metal and we wrestled for five minutes before the creature went around a limb, got a direct pull that was powerful enough to spread the double hook. He dragged it through the ring eye and went about his business.

There was another pair of hooks connected to a round jig head. Bill McKinney and I had fed that one to the wall-eyes in western Ontario until they chewed the plastic worm to shreds and then bit it off completely, leaving the bare hooks. I have no idea why I put the sad remains in my tackle box, unless I thought that sometime and somehow they might fit another worm.

Here was a bomber with its tail hooks pulled out. How it got that way was still a mystery. I was crossing a point, bumping the bomber along the bottom when something gave it the kind of paralyzing you feel all the way to your toes. It must have been a big catfish, since the critter never surfaced. He marched off toward the center of the lake, went down until he found a snag and broke off, and I couldn't stop him on the 20-pound line.

I trolled the point a few more times, made some casts and was about to move to another bassy spot when the bomber taken by the catfish bobbed to the surface, with its tail hooks gone. I'd give my jug of ice water on a hot day to know what happened.

I became so intrigued in laying out the lures and reminiscing about them, that when I got through packing the tackle box, the doggone thing was almost as jumbled as it was before I began. So I slammed the lid and went to look in the mailbox for my evening paper, which didn't do me any good, because I still couldn't see well enough to read.

Triandos HRs Rap Reeling Bengals, 11-0

DETROIT (AP)—Gus Triandos belted two home runs and a pair of singles, driving in seven of Baltimore's runs in a 11-0 walloping of the Detroit Tigers Monday.

Hoyt Wilhelm pitched a four-hit shutout for eight innings and rookie Jack Fisher finished the job.

Triandos singled and drove in a run in the third inning, hit a bases-loaded homer in the fourth, hit a two-run homer in the sixth, and added a single in the eighth before leaving the game.

The 19-hit collection tied the Baltimore club record for total hits in a nine-inning game.

Osborn Ties World Ski Jump Record

Rideout Women's Champion, Cash Suffers Knee Injury

LACONIA, N.H. (AP)—Mike Osborn of Cypress Gardens, Fla., tied the world record for the men's jump with a 142-foot leap Monday but had to settle for a point tie with Buster McCalla as the 17th annual American Water Ski Assn. championships ended.

Defending world men's jumping titlist Joe Cash of Sarasota, Fla., already named to the U.S. team for the world competition in Italy next month, injured his left knee in his specialty. He was hospitalized for precautionary X rays.

Cash's left knee gave out as he hit the water on his first jump. He balked on the second, then the knee gave way again on his third try.

Osborn and McCalla registered 310 points each in the jump. McCalla, also from Cypress Gardens, jumped 131 feet on his best effort.

The winners of the over-all championships based on the three-day competition with their points were:

Men—Osborn, 2,622.

Veteran Men (Over 35)—Henry Holmes, West Palm Beach, Fla., 2,560.

Boys—Fred Pendlebury, San Diego, Calif., 2,542.

Women's—Nanci Rideout, Cypress Gardens, Fla., 2,830.

Girls—Vicki Van Hook, Long Beach, Calif., 2,793.

The first three finishers on points in Monday's events:

Men's Slalom—1. Cash, 1,000. 2. Jim Jackson, Cypress Gardens, Fla., 977. 3. Mike Amsbry, Orange, Calif., 822.

Boys' Tricks—1. Larry Penacho, San Diego, Calif., 1,000. 2. Nick Orsi, Stockton, Calif., 910. 3. Bob Lilly, Sharon, Pa., 829.

Girls' Jump—1. Barbara Cooper, Lakeland, Fla., 1,000. 2. Norine Bardill, Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 834. 3. Vicki Van Hook, 830.

Women's Slalom—1. Nanci Rideout, 1,000. 2. Vicki Vance, Sacramento, Calif., 667. 3. Gwen Huston, Hot Springs, Ark., 600.

Men's Jump—1. Tie between Osborn and McCalla, 310 each. 3. Jackson, 295.

VETS AT VANDALIA

72-Year-Old Wins Shoot

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—Fred Hansen, 72-year-old Lakewood, Ohio, marksman, broke 100 straight targets Monday for a repeat victory in the National Seniors Trapshooting Championship for men over 70, as the 60th Grand American Trapshoot opened.

Hansen, head of a Cleveland manufacturing concern, said he had spent $50,000 on trapshooting before he won his first championship a year ago. That was this same seniors title which he took in 1958 with a score of 99 of 100.

The women's championship for shooters who have passed the half-century mark wound up in a deadlock at 95 between Maxine Wiseman of Mount Vernon, S.D., and Mrs. Lewis R. Wolfe of Philadelphia.

Almost 800 shooters were on the "roaring grand" firing line in a 200-target introductory event. The veterans' titles were decided on the first 100 targets.

Georgia's Amateur Ski Fans Invade Lake Robin Friday

Special to The Constitution

PINE MOUNTAIN—There'll be no Mike Osborns, Joe Cashes, or Nanci Rideouts present but there'll be plenty of competition when 81 amateurs compete in the Georgia Open Amateur Water Ski tournament at Ida Cason Gardens Friday and Saturday.

In a tournament designed for the contestant all rules for AWSA meets will be used except that the boats will travel at a slower speed.

The two day meet will be held on Robin Lake using the same course and jumps that were used for the National championship that was held there in 1958.

The primary purpose of the tournament, according to director Howard (Bo) Callaway is to give experience and instruction to amateur skiers.

After holding the Southern Regionals in 1957, the Nationals in 1958 and the Callaway Invitational in June and finding no Georgia entries plans were made to accommodate local amateur skiers and get them interested.

Tournament officials stated that of the 81 entries, approximately 35 are from Georgia.

The boys', girls' and women's competition will be staged Friday while the men and veterans divisions will vie Saturday.

New Record For Endurance

SEATTLE (AP)—Dripping but grinning, Mack F. Thomson, 27, climbed out of a 12-foot deep tank of water this afternoon to claim a world's underwater endurance record for skindivers.

He entered the tank about noon Friday and remained under for 72 hours, 5 minutes and 35 seconds. This broke the unofficial record of slightly more than 50 hours set by a California housewife early this year.

Tribe Purchases Bears' Coleman

CLEVELAND (AP)—The Cleveland Indians Monday announced the recall of three minor league players and the purchase of two others.

First baseman Gordon Coleman was purchased from Mobile of the Southern Assn. and outfielder Chuck Tanner was obtained from Minneapolis of the American Assn.

Seabreeze Hosts Races

Special to The Constitution

BUCHANAN—Dub Parker of Gadsden, Ala., and Gene Hilton of Newton, N.C., winner and runner-up in a recent race here, returns Sunday at Lake Seabreeze for boat races, sanctioned by the Southeastern Boating Assn.

The 1:30 p.m. festivities include outboard, hydroplanes and runabouts. There'll be 13 heats, midgets through Class F hydroplanes. The Rebel Prop Riders are sponsoring the races.

Dave Morris' Strong Finish Captures City Publinx Title

Fires 71-70 To Win by One

By GEORGE CUNNINGHAM

Dave Morris, a hard-luck fellow who never stopped smiling, Monday capitalized where another capitulated to annex the City Public Links Men's championship with a 36-hole total of 141.

In the women's division, Mrs. Grace Lyons fired a 40-40—80 to take a seven stroke lead into Tuesday's final 18 holes.

Gaining the lead for the first time on the 32nd hole when a 30-foot birdie putt lingered on the cup's lip for a minute before falling, Morris manufactured rounds of 71-70 to nip nightclub manager Jimmy Farr and the demanding par figure at Continental Colony Club by one stroke.

Farr, who might have been deprived of the title by a rules misinterpretation, had a 70-72—142 which put him two shots ahead of strong favorite Gene Dahlbender.

Big Dolly, soaring to a 75 in the morning, then tacked on an afternoon 69 which included two eagles and enough time in the woods to earn a Boy Scout's merit badge.

Farr Second, 'Dolly' Third

Wally Cochran, ahead for 31 holes, Don Scartz and Abe Massar chugged in with 146s and teenager Wayne Yates needed a hole-in-one for a 147 which tied him with defending champion Lindsey Crawley and Jim Folden.

It was the first major championship for the determined, 36-year-old Morris, who was felled by a sniper's bullet his first day of World War II combat and spent the next three years in an army hospital.

Now an industrial salesman and weekend golfer, Morris never faltered once he gained the lead, nailed another birdie on the 33rd hole, then parred his way home.

Not one of the 63 competitors would have bet against Dahlbender, even after he turned seven shots behind leader Cochran and four back of Morris.

With nine holes remaining, Dahlbender trailed Cochran by two and Morris by one. Now the Monster was marching and successive birdies at 28 and 29, courtesy of 18 and 15-foot putts, put Dolly one back of Cochran and one ahead of Morris who bogeyed 29.

Cochran had matched Dahlbender's bird at 29 and went three shots ahead when Dolly fell apart and bogeyed 30 and 31.

Then on No. 32, tragedy overtook Cochran just moments after it had smiled on Morris.

Cochran's tee shot went 10 yards into thick woods and imbedded in a moss-covered rock pile. Unaware of the rock, Cochran blasted into the stone and the ball ricocheted at least 50 yards into deep underbrush and thick timber.

Wally's next shot left him in a gulley, still in the woods, and he finally holed out, with a triple bogey which left him square with Dahlbender again.

But by this time Morris had all the advantage he needed when another bird fell at 33.

Farr's victory chances may have evaporated when he mistakenly thought an errant tee shot on No. 27 went out of bounds. Had he played his shot which went into the woods, he might have ended up with a par four instead of the double bogey six which cost him the crown.

Koufax Victimizes Phillies Again, 8-2

Dodger Lefty Whiffs 13; Hodges Bats in 5 Runs

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Dodger left-hander Sandy Koufax who struck out a record 16 Phillies June 22, allowed only four hits and fanned 13 Monday night as Los Angeles swamped Philadelphia, 8-2.

Gil Hodges led the Dodger attack, batting in five runs, three on a homer into the left field stands in the second inning. It was his 20th.

The Dodgers made right-handed Ed Keegan's major league debut a brief one. Keegan, a bright prospect just up from Williamsport in the Eastern League, gave up four runs and four walks.

Reliever Jack Meyer and Ray Semproch held the Dodgers to only one run and two hits after the second inning. Together with Koufax's strikeouts, they ran the number fanned to 24.

Anderson Lassoes Milwaukee, 3-0

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Chicago stalled Milwaukee's drive in the National League pennant fight Monday night by blanking the Braves 3-0 on Bob Anderson's neat six-hitter.

The defeat dropped the Braves into third place, a half game behind the Los Angeles Dodgers. The Dodgers moved to within 3½ games of first-place San Francisco by defeating Philadelphia. The Giants lost to Pittsburgh.

'PLAY 'EM BOTH'

Bailey-Blankenship Problem Pleasant for Irish's Kennerly

By PAUL ATKINSON

There are many problems which beset O'Keefe High School football coach Dan Kennerly. But finally he's come up with a most pleasant one.

His two current quarterbacks, Winfred Bailey (175) and Buddy Blankenship (165), are too good to keep on the bench.

"I've got to find room for both of 'em in the lineup," Kennerly was saying Monday night. Maybe we'll spot Blankenship at end, or put Bailey at either tackle or guard.

"Whatever we do, they're too good athletes to use as alternates for one another. They're gonna be in the lineup together somewhere."

And this brought Kennerly to a brief discussion of Bailey, a junior.

"I just whish I could find some way for Bailey to run with the ball and block for himself. He does both well and he's a terrific tackler."

Of sophomore Blankenship:

"He has real ability. Certainly he's a fine athlete. Looks good at end, so maybe we'll play him there when he's not spelling Bailey at quarterback."

There are other outstanding individuals on the Fighting Irish roster. The tackles are considerably bulky with senior Paul Hosea (215) and sophomore Jerry Kendrick (235) heading a list that also includes David Pence (225), Sammy Dale (230) and Frank O'Shields (248), the latter threesome moving up as freshmen.

At the guards will be Robert Bullard (175), Ted Bynum (175) and Johnny Abercrombie (155). Bullard was tabbed by Kennerly: "He's developed as fast as any lineman I've had."

James Harrison (175) will be the center, while Phil Gober (155), Harlan Medford (150) and Bobby Portwood (165) are the top-ranking ends, with the possibility that Blankenship may visit that position from time to time.

Billy Haygood (175) is the fullback, with Jack Oakes (155) and Don McKinney (155) currently at the halfbacks. Barry Walker (160) will join in at halfback when he recovers from a broken nose.

On his plans for the offense, Kennerly admitted he's passminded. "I've got two good passers in Bailey and Blankenship," he said. "So likely we'll pass a good bit—if we can uncover some pass receivers.

"This is the most enthusiastic bunch of kids I've had in the last four years. Anyone who beats us will have to play football, that's for sure.

"Team to beat in 3-AAA West? I'd say Brown, Northside, and Sylvan, likely in that order."

hurt attendance at Michigan and other schools there.

"The pros didn't hurt football on the Eastern Seaboard. The schools there just didn't want to pay the price."

He added that should the pros locate in the South "there are enough, say Tech and Auburn people, to fill the stadiums."

Turning to a review of his 1959 Auburn club, Jordan said "good football should be secure" on the Plain for several years.

"By that I don't mean we will go 24 more games without losing," he said. "Only, relatively speaking, our teams will be strong. We had a good freshman group last year and we have a nucleus of experienced men back on the varsity."

OFF THE CUFF: Although Auburn lost all-America end Jerry Wilson by graduation, Jordan said the flanks should be well protected. He said Bobby Wasden could be better than Wilson. . . . The Auburn coach, making his 680th speech, added that if he had a day off and his choice of games to see this fall he would pick the Georgia-Alabama game. "The fur is going to fly," he said. . . . He went on record against freshmen playing varsity football in the SEC. "Few sophomores could make conference teams of today."

with right-hander Phil Regan in the curtain-raiser until Steve Boros opened the home half of the seventh with a double to left-center and went to third when center fielder Bob Taylor dropped the ball after starting to make the throw-in.

Raymond walked Jay Cooke and Bob Micelotta purposely to set up a possible double play, but Danny Ryan hoisted a fly to right field and Boros barely beat Em Lindbeck's throw home with the lone run.

Regan, now 2-0 against the Crackers and 9-5 over-all, allowed only two runners to reach base in notching the 20th shutout by a Birmingham hilltopper. Lindbeck doubled to center with two outs in the fourth, and pitcher Ray Rippelmeyer, playing left field, looped a Texas leaguer over shortstop to lead off the sixth.

Raymond sacrificed Rippelmeyer to second, but Regan—who fanned seven—struckout Bob Jacobs and Poochie Hartsfield to quell the threat.

The little French Canadian righthander, who whiffed five and walked as many including those two on purpose, deserved a better fate than soaking up his seventh loss against 3 triumphs. Cooke's bunt single to lead off the fifth and Jim Hughes' one-out bloop single to center in the sixth were the only other blows he permitted.

Gail Henley foilowed Hughes' hit with a wrong-field shot down the left-field line, but Ripplemeyer saved his fellow pitcher with a grandstand catch.

The whitewash was the third in five games administered to the gun-shy Crackers, who have been blanked on 14 occasions, four times by Baron flingers. Atlanta has scored just five runs in 6 games going into the second game of the twin-bill.

The first of Bob Talbot's two singles, stolen base, wild pitch, two walks and a hit batsman accounted for two Cracker tallies in the second inning of the afterpiece.

Birmingham broke Cristante's perfection in the seventh on Bob Johnson's double, groundout and Henley's sacrifice fly.

Chuck Kolakowski (8-12) will duel the Barons' Lefty Wyman Carey (12-8) in the third game Tuesday night, starting at 7:30 (Atlanta time).

CRACKER CRUMBS — General mainager Eddie Glennon, whose Barons are fighting a losing fight to overhaul Mobile for the second half flag, says it isn't true that all playoff games with Bears will be played in Birmingham. "It wouldn't be a good idea at all,"

As I See It

Religion Beats Sex 10 to 1 on WSB-TV

By PAUL JONES

Sex is a three-letter word that sells more movie tickets than anything else—and it is a word plastered across the front cover of almost all of the major magazines on the stands today.

But the folks at Channel 2 are inclined to feel that sex is being overrated—at least as far as television is concerned.

Jones

WSB-TV recently did a series of shows on three popular topics—religion, sex and politics. The series on religion drew the greatest response, overshadowing the series on sex by at least 10 to 1.

The programs on religion were so popular, in fact, that WSB-TV is repeating this particular series this week.

Rabbi Rothschild, of the Temple, was interviewed Monday in the first of the programs. A representative of the Catholic faith will be heard Tuesday at 9 a.m. and oustanding Protestant ministers will occupy the spots on Wednesday and Thursday.

All four will return on Friday to compose a panel to answer questions of viewers.

Ruth Kent and Ray Moore, co-hosts on Today in Georgia, have issued an invitation to viewers to send in questions they might have about religion for the Friday question-and-answer session.

What about the series on sex and politics?

Apparently there wasn't enough interest on the part of the viewers for WSB-TV to repeat those shows.

I NEVER KNEW HARRY TRUMAN had a particularly great sense of humor. I seem to remember that he didn't find anything funny in a music critic's review of his daughter's concert.

But Jack Benny apparently has been exposed to some Harry Truman humor for he has hired the ex-President to be a guest on one of his shows this fall.

Mr. T. will get together with Benny in Independence, Mo., and they will tape a comedy segment which is expected to run about 15 minutes.

Truman will turn over his pay for the show (an estimated $10,000) to charity.

DYKE VAN DYKE, a former Atlantan who now is doing big things in network television, will perform one of the most amusing skits seen anywhere when he visits the Andy Williams show Tuesday (Channel 5 at 10 p.m.).

Dick will do his impression of Edward R. Murrow doing his Person to Person show. Andy and Mike Baker will give him a hand during the skit. This is one of the funniest bits ever.

Andy, incidentally, should have another bang-up production. Peggy King will join him for some songs. The show will have a novel opening with all the singers, stage hands and technicians toting scenery onto the bare stage as Andy sings "There'll Be Some Changes Made."

Sure wish they could find a regular berth for this boy. He's done a big job with a summer replacement show.

NBC Takes a Look at Back-to-School Problems

By THE TV SCOUT

BEST BET—The first of the special progams of the new season is with us Tuesday night, and Back To School, an NBC news look at the coming school term, is important in several ways. First, it is slotted in prime evening time, and there will be more news specials thus treated this year than ever before. Second, a sponsor "walked in off the street" and bought the show, indicating a burgeoning interest in quality programs by advertisers. And, third, the program itself is an important one. It looks at three major problems facing the nation's schools: the financial problems, integration vs. segregation and new advancements in educational techniques. Nine reporters in nine cities will be called on, and each will report live and also show some film. You'll see the problems of Los Angeles (building a new school each week and spending $1,000,000 a day—and it's still not enough); Chicago (where the invasion by hillbillies is complicating the school system); Atlanta, Houston and Little Rock (where integration is the main issue); New Orleans (where, despite a lack of funds, special classes for bright students are being tried), and many other problems and some solutions. David Brinkley, himself a father of three school-age children and a PTA official, will be in charge. 8-9 (Ch. 2).

8:30-9 (Ch. 5)—To Tell the Truth presents what probably will be its regular panel for a while—Polly Bergen, Monique Van Vooren, Ralph Bellamy and Tom Poston. Greeting this pleasant array will be the usual nine characters, including six unmitigated liars. One spot involves a man with an unusual hobby—he collects noses.

9-9:30 (Ch. 5—Adventure Showcase is the pilot film for a series about World War II correspondents. It was to have been called Combat Correspondent, and would have starred Lin McCarthy and Gene Barry. Barry, in a supporting role here, probably would never have become Bat Masterson if this series had made it. Ed Stodel, a reporter on the Los Angeles Herald-Express and a correspondent with the Third Marine Division in '44, collaborated on the script for this one, which tells about two Marines in the Guam jungles attempting to free some Jap-held hostages. Like all pilot films, this is spotty, but there are a lot worse shows on the air regularly.

Ralph Bellamy

Polly Bergen

9:30-10 (Ch. 11)—Naked City's repeat is a curious assault on psychology. We have a young college boy, who imagines he's the murderer everybody is looking for. He isn't, but he begins to act like he was. All this, of course, poses a neat legalistic problem, and it takes some doing by the house heroes—the resurrected John McIntire and James Franciscus—to straighten everybody out. Everybody but the mixed-up college boy, that is.

10-10:30 (Ch. 2)—Repeating on The David Niven Show is a slow, draggy but somehow moving piece called "The Last Room." This one takes an inquisitor for an Iron Curtain police state and follows him down (or up) the road to humanity. Three factors help him straighten out and fly right—the courageous resistance to his torture by an old man, the trust of a deaf-mute girl who serves as his confidante—and the Bible.

10:10:30 (Ch. 11)—One of Alcoa Presents' weirdest excursions into darkest ESP is being repeated. "The Burning Girl" tells of a teen-age miss who is followed by fires wherever she goes. (Sounds like a case for Arson Lupin.) A good cast acts out this strange tale, and the solution may leave you a trifle disappointed, but, after all, what can you expect?

Color TV Wins Ivan's Fancy

MOSCOW (AP) — The voting machines at the U.S. exhibition showed a new leader in the popularity poll after four weeks of balloting by exhibit visitors. Color television passed automobiles.

A new question added last week gave the Russians a chance to vote on American jazz musicians. Louis Armstrong led that category with 676. Duke Ellington was second with 568.

Coffee Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—Coffee futures were lower under the influence of liquidation of nearby September contracts, prior to first notice day on Thursday. Uncertainty in trade quarters as to whether African producers will can also an unsettling factor.

A full-scale meeting of the coffee study group was scheduled today in Washington to discuss coffee plans. All but one of the 15 Latin-American producing countries have already indicated their approval of the pact which aims to stabilize the market through a system of fixed annual export quotas.

Poultry

GEORGIA LIVE POULTRY

Broilers and fryers: Demand for processed poultry ranged mostly fair to good, though desirable aggressiveness lacking in instances. Live offerings fairly well balanced with present needs at most points. Average weights lighter in instances though generally within desired range. Estimated slaughter by Georgia processors Monday, 1,385,000 head compared to 1,482,000 head last Monday. Georgia Poultry Exchange Friday, Aug. 21, offered 349,700 head, sold 370,700 head as follows: 41,200 at 15-15.3c, 299,900 at 15.4-15.6c, 29,600 at 15.8-16.4c.

Buyers' offering prices per pound on birds not priced prior to Monday's movement: At farms 15-16c, 1,103,000 head, 74 per cent at 15c, 5 per cent at 15½c, 1 per cent at 16c.

Prices paid per pound Friday, Aug. 21, offered 493,700 head, sold 370,700 sales on exchange, broilers and fryers 23½-23¾ lbs.: At farms 15-16.4c, 1,824,000 head, 58 per cent at 15c, 5 per cent at 15.2-15.4c, 19 per cent at 15.5-15.8c, 2 per cent at 16-16.4c, 16 per cent intercompany sales booked at 15c.

Hens: Offerings remained adequate in instances, short in others. Demand fair. Trading light to moderate. Prices paid per pound for heavy type at farms too few to report, f.o.b. plants 13½-14c, mostly 14c. Light type at farms 7c, f.o.b. plants 8½c.

Sugar Futures

NEW YORK (AP)—World sugar futures were lower on liquidation and hedging. The decline in part was attributed to reports that Russia is offering 25,000 tons of refined sugar in the export market which posed competition for Cuba.

Casablanca was expected to enter the raw market for additional sugar on Tuesday.

World raws were quoted at 2.84 cents a pound f.a.s. Cuba.

Domestic futures were steady.

There were no sales reported in the domestic raw market.

Demand for refined was good.

Domestic futures were steady, higher. Sales 5 contracts.

Loan Report Boosts Wheat

CHICAGO (AP)—The first solid bullish influence to hit the wheat futures market in several weeks boosted prices of that grain well ahead on the Board of Trade.

Other grains were generally steady to firm but soybeans turned weak after a strong start with prices up as much as a cent a bushel on reports of a severe China drought.

Nearly all wheat contracts finished about 2 cents higher with the May delivery up as much as 2⅜ cents. The runup was linked with the Friday report by the Department of Agriculture which showed almost 108 million bushels of 1959 crop wheat already in the government price support loan.

CHICAGO GRAIN QUOTATIONS

CHICAGO (AP)—No wheat or soybeans sales. Corn No. 1 yellow local 1.27; No. 2 white 1.28; No. 5 yellow 1.20½. Oats No. 1 extra heavy white 70½; No. 3 extra heavy white 70¼.

Butter and Eggs

ATLANTA EGG MARKET (USDA-GDA)

Eggs: Prices to retailers trended lower on medium as a reflection of last week's price declines in northern terminal markets on this size. Weekend movement through retail outlets generally fair to good on large and small while interest in mediums irregular. Shippers report movement of mediums encountered only when combined with small. Local offerings of large generally short of needs, mediums more than ample. Smalls adequate. Prices paid, cents per dozen, and reported volume for Friday and Saturday, Aug. 21 and 22 by first receivers, delivered Atlanta, cases included (min. 80 per cent A quality). Atlanta Produce

On the Atlanta produce market receipts were liberal to heavy over the weekend with trading moderate on Sunday and light early Monday according to the A.M.S. Watermelon sizes were limited to mostly small to medium sizes and jobbing 25-50 cents each. Peaches from various points were more plentiful and ranged 1.75-2.50 bushel with few large and best Hales at 4.00 bushel; Virginia U.S. No. 1 Elbertas brought 4.25 per bushel. Cantaloups from Virginia and North Carolina were in light supply at 1.75-2.00 bulk per bushel. Georgia pears were dull at 1.00-1.50 per bushel.

Collards were unchanged at mostly 1.00-1.25 dozen and turnip greens 1.00-1.50 bushel. Corn was in limited supply Monday morning at 25-40 cents dozen; sacked white brought 2.00 and very best to 3.00. Fifty-pound roundred potatoes were 1.50-1.75 for Alabama stock and 1.50 on some Tennessee with most round white varieties ranging 1.30-1.40 per 50-pound bag. North Carolina cabbage was offered freely at 1.50-1.75 per 50-pound bag and sweet potatoes were easier at 3.00-3.50 bushel with poorer and small 1.00 and up. Georgia snap beans sold 1.50 to 3.00 according to quality with some North Carolina stock 2.00-3.00. Poles brought from 2.00 to high as 4.25 on best and North Carolina poles were 3.50-4.00.

Georgia best yellow crookneck squash ranged 2.00-2.75, mostly 2.00-2.25; filed peas were 1.50-2.00, mostly 1.75 and North Carolina fancy dill cucumbers were lower at 3.50-4.00 bushel. Georgia bell peppers large were 1.25-2.00 and some best high as 2.75; okra held at 2.00-2.50 bushel and eggplant 2.00-2.50, few 2.75. Florida 10-pound cartons of Persian limes were 1.25-1.50 and pineapples 4.50-5.00 for the large crate with Cuban crates 2.75-3.00.

Huge New Prison Considered by State

By GENE BRITTON

There were indications Monday that the administration may soon announce plans for building a new state prison costing at least one million dollars.

Associated Press Wirephoto

CHARGED—HOUSTON, Tex. — Mrs. Betty Joe Ellis, 18, was charged with murder after she told police she killed her 11-week-old son, Robert, by stabbing him with a safety pin and hitting him with her fists because his crying made her nervous.

Members of the State Board of Corrections visited Gov. Vandiver at least two times during the day.

The governor said Monday afternoon he had discussed the "acuteness" of crowded prison conditions with the board, but he said he had made no definite commitment for making the money available.

ESTIMATES PRICE

Corrections Director Jack Forrester estimated the cost of a new prison, built with prison labor to accommodate 1,200 inmates, would be between $1,000,000 and $1,250,000.

Forrester and other members of the board sat in on the governor's news conference Monday morning. They stayed for a conference with the governor after the reporters left. They went back for another conference in the afternoon.

The governor and Forrester have both expressed concern over increasingly crowded conditions at state prison facilities.

SEES STUDY NEED

Vandiver has indicated previously he thought a new prison ought to be built, when money becomes available, in the north Georgia area—possibly in the vicinity of Atlanta.

The state's big prison at Reidsville in south Georgia was built to house 1,800 prisoners. It is overcrowded by several hundred prisoners.

Asked Monday if he had a million dollars he could make available for a new prison, Vandiver said the question would require serious study.

NO "FIRETRAPS"

Reporters reminded Forrester at the governor's news conference that the New Jersey jail where eight convicts died over the weekend had been described as an overcrowded firetrap.

The corrections director said there's no question about Georgia prisons being overcrowded but he didn't consider them firetraps.

All state prisons are "fireproof," with one exception, he said. He said the exception is the prison at Alto, once a hospital for tuberculosis patients. At that unit of the prison system, fire drills are conducted regularly, he said.

Brunswick Man Leases Airstrip At Jekyll Island

The Jekyll Island Authority Monday approved lease of the island's airstrip to Dr. Robert H. Thompson of Brunswick.

Thompson agreed to stock 100 octane gasoline at the airstrip and to keep a mechanic on duty there at all times.

The authority also approved changes in the schedules of buses running between the island and Brunswick. Thompson is principal stockholder in the bus line.

The company will be allowed to reduce its current 18 trips a day to a dozen. At the same time it agreed to extend its service to the south end of Jekyll, which is set aside for Negroes.

Buses will continue to run at school times under the new schedule.

Every issue of U. S. NEWS & WORLD REPORT brings you news like this -- news you can use, news you didn't know and can't get anywhere else. Interviews with famous news-makers in the fields of politics, government, foreign affairs, labor, science, industry, health. Not one, but five newsletters (which many subscribers consider to be alone worth more than the magazine's cost). Special Reports based on weeks or months of study by experts. Historic speeches, press conferences, and other important documents of our time printed in full. Many picture-charts and other visual techniques for summarizing valuable facts quickly.

You get nearly twice as many pages of news as in other news magazines. And it's all "meat" -- all important, essential information that is of usuable value to anyone occupying your position in life.

Why not try it? This special "get acquainted" offer will enable you to discover how much this new kind of magazine can help you in your daily business and personal life. You'll realize why each weekly issue is looked forward to by executives, legislators, merchants, educators, lawyers, and other decision-makers.

And your Trial Subscription won't cost you a penny unless it convinces you that this is more than a news magazine -- that it's really a new kind of information service you can hardly afford to be without.

SEND NO MONEY: Just Mail Coupon -- We'll Bill You Later for Trial Subscription Price of $2.67
